Pope Pius XI passed into eternity breathing the words, "Jesus. Mary. Peace." Within this benediction he has given the world a living example of the life he has led. As Vicar of Christ, every action of his pontificate was dedicated to the struggle for peace, both temporal and spiritual.

His physical energies were exhausted in meditating affairs of nations. His mental energies were taxed with the perplexities of Civilization and race hatred. The eyes of the civilized world were constantly upon him, and Christians throughout both Catholic and Protestant countries were turned to him. Without doubt, Pius XI was the greatest figure in world history during the years of his pontificate that kept alive the traditions and hopes of the world that scorned it. He kept the Church and Catholicity as sources of truth in a world filled with deceit. He has truly been the foundation rock of religion. We are filled with the gladness that his eyes of the civilized world were constantly upon him, and Christians throughout both Catholic and Protestant countries were turned to him. Without doubt, Pius XI was the greatest figure in world history during the years of his pontificate that kept alive the traditions and hopes of the world that scorned it. He kept the Church and Catholicity as sources of truth in a world filled with deceit. He has truly been the foundation rock of religion.

In leaving us, his words of blessing remain. It almost seems as if Pius XI, standing upon the edge of eternity, speaks to us. His words are ever reverberating back to us from the unknown. For there can be no sure foundation, either temporal or spiritual, without the Catholic press. As an outlet for the Church, it is the last word and deed of our beloved Pope. As the Church is the last word and deed of our beloved Pope, it is the last word and deed of the Church. As an outlet for the Church, it is the last word and deed of our beloved Pope.

Lent With Mary

Mary's Attitude

The spirit of Mary is always in complete union with that of the liturgy, so it is very profitable to try to appreciate Mary's type attitude towards different phases of Christ's life which correspond with the Church Year. We may ask, "How did Mary spend the time preceding the celebration of the Mass?" Although not mentioned in the Gospel narrative concerning the actions of Mary during this time, we may be sure that she was completely all these traits, but certainly our girls... the fascinating, breathless little shape or form. Student Pulse

CATHOLIC JUNIOR HERALD STAFF:
The Representative Men and Women feature which appears in our paper is a first, in itself, but a step and further toward the establishment of a complete network of Catholic publications in the United States. In the past, there has been a lack of organization and coordination in the Catholic press, which has hindered its growth and development. Now, with the establishment of the Catholic Press Association, there is a greater focus on promoting the Catholic press as a valuable resource for the faithful.

First, the purpose of the column is, in my opinion, an attempt to show the utility of the Catholic press in showcasing the Church's teachings, promoting its values, and providing a platform for dialogue and discussion. By highlighting the values and virtues of our Catholic women, the column aims to inspire and encourage others to embrace these qualities in their own lives.

Second, the column also serves to promote the idea of the Catholic press as a means of阐 promoting the Church. By featuring the work of Catholic press members and highlighting their contributions, the column aims to encourage others to consider supporting the Catholic press and its various publications.

Finally, the column also serves to foster a sense of community among Catholic women, who share a common faith and identity. By showcasing the talents and accomplishments of our Catholic women, the column aims to inspire and encourage others to engage with the Catholic press and its various publications.

In conclusion, the purpose of the column is to promote the Catholic press as a valuable resource for the faithful, to inspire and encourage others to embrace its values and virtues, and to foster a sense of community among Catholic women. The Catholic Press Association has played a crucial role in the growth and development of the Catholic press, and its efforts should be commended and supported.
Pot Luck Luncheon, Talk By Fr. Kohler Mark Valentine Day

In celebration of St. Valentine's Day, February 14, the Women's League held luncheon at 11:50 in Room 105. Guest speaker at the luncheon was the Reverend Joseph Kohler from Portland, Michigan, who gave an informative talk on "Mark Valentine Day." In his speech he told the girls that God has given them a great share in His plans, and that the only way they can accomplish anything is by working and collaborating with one another. An informal discussion followed after the luncheon table as the girls an opportunity to settle some questions that bothered them.

Bonnie O'Brien

We have with us today our war-bur­
ing president, Andrew Boniface O'Brien, Jr., who this year came out of his scholastic shell and is en­dorsing the personal and group activi­ties as possible. He has managed thus far to garner such presidencies as those of the C. C. L. C. and the all­city sodality council, along with the of­fice of secretary-treasurer of the Men's Union and business manager of the LANTERN. His little one-man campaign for electoral office is a political marvel in the original language. It is one thing to take a napkin for your nose, or to keep your hands clean of woolen socks. At any moment the wall pressed surfs of his multi­colored pantaloon may rise above his delicately curved toes to reveal orange, red, brown, and even pink and orchid in a delicious array.

His conversations over French — or any other language — in the "Spring" atmosphere, but doesn't he look silly when a faculty member musses his hair or ignores his forehead-tete-a-tete? He recently made his debut at a basketball court in dimly shrouded twilight, with the threat of a Papal encyclical threatening to go south for the winter if he should turn in a lost play before Lansing — and after all, its Kenosha that counts. And his lyri­zeote extended an invitation to all the boys, all the gals follow into Roonj 105 — or out to lunch.

St. Rev. Monsignor Joseph M. Haffte, general consul of France in Devo­deny, will be the celebrant for Bolland and Desjardins. William J. Murphy, principal of Catholic Central high school will be deacon, and the Reverend Leonard Verheg­nau, chaplain of Mount Mercy Academy will be sub-deacon.

Announcing an event preceding the Rally a reception will be given in the C. J. C. Campus parlor for Dr. Falls and the two Chinese girls. This reception is to be tended by the ladies of the local sororities of C. J. C. and the representatives of the student Catholic Action Counc­l.

The Reverend Arthur Bukowski, principal of C. J. C. College, not only fellow college and moderator of the Council, is the general chairman of the rally and has been instrumental in the formation of Catholic Action groups in Kent County.

Raiders Win From Parsons 32-23

The Raider quintet made it two in a row when they took Parsons' Business College 32 to 23 in a thrilling contest. The Ceejay quintet at the Catholic Central gym, sharpening for its last contest of the season, Coach Ed White's new combination of Groat, Scholten, Duff, Prangley, and Overton, came out fast at the beginning of the game to take an early lead which they never lost. At the half they were leading 14 to 7.

In the second half the Raiders kept the steam turned on. With only a few minutes to play the Parsons team was only four points behind Scholten came through with a couple of long toss to cinch the victory.

High man for the Ceejays was Herr Scholten, with 9 counters. Duff followed closely with 8. Ray- mond took honors for the Kalamaunt quintet with 5.

OVERTON WRITES MUSIC SELECTION

By JOSEPH MESTER

"It's Foolish To Dream". You never heard of it? Of course, you haven't. The studio out here at the college has been working on it. This is the latest selection in the current catalog of Mr. Overton, Catholic Junior freshman.

This isn't Hall's first composition. Last year he worked out what he called an "orchestral fantasy" entitled "The Negro Salute". Later this year the studio played at the spring concert of the high school symphony orchestra. This year he has worked on another light symphonic piece, which he calls "Berenice". So do we, we're going to have Overton's composition in its spring concert.

Just finished is also an arrangement of "Blairduse" which lanky freshman has written for the C. J. Chorus. The piece starts out classically. Leo Imprez, soprano, harp, and solo. Then the piece moves swift into semi-modern style with a "Bolero" rhythm background. Nancy Burroughs, soprano, solo, the solo part.

Hall had no previous experience in arranging compositions for dance orchestras. He and Richard Groat, the College's present dance orchestra, is composed of seven pieces and, according to its leaders, play as well or better than any organization in Grand Rapids. The theme song of this recent assembly is "I made myself a pair of pants", a piece of Hall Overton. The maestros have at present completed 20 arrangements.

It is expected that the orchestra and Mr. Overton's songs will be used in the college show "Campus Sil- houettes".

Guido Freund Speaks On Lourdes, Shows Pictures Of Town

When Guido Freund, prominent promoter of this city, visited the Catholic Central gym for the Grand Rapids Junior college freshman, in the Jay sees' gym, he came out fast of his leave of absence during the World War, it left a vivid impression. His European impressions he related to the College students at the Catholic Life Conference meeting, February 3, illustrating his talk with photographs of the impressive spots.

Mr. Freund described Lourdes as a tiny town in the Pyrenean mountains, bordering on northern Spain and as a marketing community and trade center for other countries of Europe.

In the center of the town, he said, there is a relic of medieval days, a fort used as a defense point in the old days when the community needed protection from mischievous raiders.

"Instead of grocery stores you find today", said Mr. Freund, "stall churches that sell church goods because of the pilgrimages connected with the shrine. A barred door is not needed at night to look the chancellors or church vestments because there is a complete change in the characters of the town. The open arms of peace and charity are in this community."

Mr. Freund marveled at the architecture of the upper, lower, and criteria Lourdes, pictured in the photographs. The windows, he explained, are the perfection of French stained glass. But he pointed out the narrowness of the grottos, he thinks, is the outdoor way of the Pyrenean mountains. The statistics in bronze figures of life sizes, donations of various dioceses in Europe, are so denoted and said that you feel that you are actually accompanying the donor on his conventional journey, explained Mr. Freund.

BISHOP FROM AFRICA GIVES MISSION DATA

understanded by American and Euro- pean rulers of hunting, he very often goes to the grottos, as he often does to the pyramids. "Communism has reaped its ugly head even in Africa", said the Bishop.

"The Bishop's papers and the hammer and sickle sign. The red flag of the revolution, his flag, the C. I. U., the Catholic Union, a Communist organization. To control all the pyramids and churches, we have joined the C. I. U., the Catholic Union, a Communist organization, which promotes Catholic Action in Africa."

The question was raised as to whether the collecting of stamps gave any aid to the mission. The Bishop replied that it did.

Success Of Men Due To Personality Traits

"It is of some significance that the intellectual development of a man, I come to the conclusion that 15% of a man's suc- cess is due to his technical training and 15% to his personality traits", emphasized Roy Newton, dean of the Junior College of Ferris Institu- tute, of Big Rapids, in his lecture on the "Improvement of Personality", to the students at the Knights of Columbus auditorium, February 17.

To define personality, Mr. Newton said that it did not lead to a summary definition but was rather included in eight factors. The first of these is the way you look. This is of vital importance especially today, since people are living in a world that depends on a great deal of personal signs, including your facial expression and general ensemble of features.

The way you talk is the second factor upon which your personality depends. The tone, quality, volume of your voice and your vocabulary and use of English are taken into consideration. This is a factor that a great deal can be done about, explained Mr. Newton.

"The way you walk, your posture, movements and the vigor with which you do things is the third factor that directly affects personality explained Mr. Newton.

The fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth factor are those that have the highest faculty — your intelligence. The way you act emotionally be- depends whether you are free or at- tivated with emotional prejudice. Your intelligence level will either expand or limit the interest other will have in you. Your common sense will enable you to use discretion and your philosophy of life will set your standard. Mr. New- ton informed the audience that one should not have a philosophy that is too pessimistic nor one that is too, ebullient.

"The eighth factor set forth in the features and personality of Mr. Newton, "its versatility. This is the number and variety of things you can do adequately."

In conclusion Mr. Newton listed the personality factors of personality: first, the realization of your need for improvement; second, a strong motive; third, an inventory of your voice and your vocabulary, and use of English are taken into consideration.
