What is the trouble at Aquinas college? I was proud of the school and thought that new was a four-years' prayer. But by any greater influence for good than it before a whole generation, and that prayers which the church has chosen for the Mass of the feast of Jesus. Inferences after knowledge could not be, illuminated with the light of reason, every day of the year has its fitting prayer in the missals, and persons of every station and at every plan of study, will find their spiritual inspiration in them. The misall is an important key to the life of the Church, and also an instrument of instruction. They ought to be of interest to all scholars, particularly to Catholicica who desire intimacy with the church and the Missal contains them.

The second a man's speech is to understand the man. Does it not follow that to know the Church — and thus to advance toward fullness of life — one must know the missal?

College Celebrates
Patron’s Feast Day
Learn Truth, Then Live It, Bishop Plagens Advises

Guest Speaker, Dr. McMahon, Brands Totalitarianism “Menace to Human Dignity”

Highlight of the program honoring the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, patron of the College, March 7, was the presence of the Most Rev. Reverend Joseph C. Flanagan, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Grand Rapids. Before an audience of priests, sisters, and students, at the Knights of Columbus council chamber, Bishop Plagens, in his first meeting with the college faculty and students, commented on the need of a sound education for Catholic students today, the need of a fourth “c,” religion, in the liberal curriculum. His parting word was one of counsel, “Remember,” he advised the students, “Your duty is not only to learn the truth, but to live it.”

Guest speaker of the day, Dr. Francis E. McMahon, professor of philosophy at the University of Notre Dame, addressed the assemblage on St. Thomas’s thought in relation to democracy. Dr. McMahon pointed out that now, more than ever before, the intellectual convictions of life, justice, equality, and freedom are being impaired by world revolutionary forces. He stressed the importance of turning once more to democracy.

Condemning totalitarianism as a menace to human dignity, Dr. McMahon remarked that in so far as human dignity flows from the soul, which is the reflection of God Himself, it is the confirmed duty of mankind to defend this precious, sacred dignity against totalitarian law.

Following Dr. McMahon’s talk, was a floor discussion in which students, sisters, and priests par­took. Also on the program was the singing of the school anthem, and, in tribute to Bishop Plagens, the hymn, “Al Multos Annos Vivat.”

Beginning the day’s celebration was a high Mass, at St. Andrew’s cathedral, sung by the Rev. Arthur F. Bukowski, president of the College. The Rev. Joseph Luther, instructor of religion, delivered the sermon.

College HOMER

A certain coed is wondering what Helen Imperi has to say to her B.A. Notes from the “Roast.”

Mr. Thomas T. Murphy, courtesy of the late Aiko Imperi goes “wading” slightly ahead of the season. . . . Dorothy Josephy breaks all records for having “back-seat drivers.” Believe it or not, she had nine of them on the way home. All went well until Bill Host smartly remarked, “Everybody move your left leg”—and they took him literally. . . . Dick McCormick descends to the low level of hiding the last bottle of catnip under the table.

Three cheers for Doc Jaassausch, Bill Host, and Jim McCormick, who own a “super perfect” of a very nice lawn shot they’ve dreamed up, Patay Duplexus is working on the arrangement. It really looks like something supernatural.

Late afternoon discussions at the Catholic Club have been so heated this winter that Ken Marin, liberal art student, formed the habit of cooling off at the Y.M.C.A. pool on his way home each day.

Ken's ability as a swimmer in­creased very rapidly and he soon joined the Y team. In recent meets he finished third against Wayne university and second against the Fort Wayne Y.M.C.A. in the 200-yard breast stroke.

The moral: don't be afraid of a bristled discussion.
