He was educated in England and the United States, was a Congregationalist minister in Vermont for a short time but was forced to resign his pulpit because of a sermon he delivered there on "Fools." He was received into the Church in 1913 and spent seven months in the Dominican novitiate there on "Fools." He was received into the Church in 1913 and spent seven months in the Dominican novitiate before he decided that he was not suited for the religious life. In 1913 he married. The world today is in the midst of a great "election" or struggle between the values of Christianity and the non-Christian world. The parties of the Christian Church are the only parties that have the courage and faith to listen to the world's cry for peace. The parties of the Catholic Church have been active in promoting this idea since before the war. The Catholic Church, with its platform of peace among races and nationalities, has always been a leader in this cause. We must vote for the Catholic Church because it is the only party that can bring about peace.

Since our present statistics cannot be trusted, we cannot be sure that the figures are reliable. If the figures were highly accurate, the figures would be the same as those for the war department. The reason for this is that the war department is the only organization that can be trusted to give accurate figures. The figures for the war department are based on interviews with officers and men, and are therefore more reliable than the figures for the Catholic Church.

Draught No Gauge of Patriotism

But even if the figures were relatively complete they would be quite misleading. For they are based on drafting as well as volunteering. The reason for this is that the war department is the only organization that can be trusted to give accurate figures. The figures for the war department are based on interviews with officers and men, and are therefore more reliable than the figures for the Catholic Church.

October Fantasy

Sometime old in the silence, I hear
The funeral step of autumn rain,
And the lingering touch of its drear
Slanting fingers is cold on my face again.

I hear it whisper from sooty skies
And rush and rattle down frowning eaves;
Sob where the sorry garden dies
Beneath the sodden leaves.

The funeral tip-toe of autumn rain,
And the lingering touch of its drear
Slanting fingers is cold on my face again.

So I'll not be afraid to die:
I'll cast the axe away
And make a more complete survey.

Tis true that some students seem to have
Their hands in everything and still manage
Somehow to maintain good grades; and then again,
Tis true some people have jumped off the Brooklyn bridge and lived. But would you like to try it?

Adler Explains Basic Principles in Educational System

"What Am I Seeking?", "How Do I Get There" Cited as Fundamental Problems

"Until educators recognize that there is objective truth, all talk about education is irrelevant." Adler concluded, "the ends of education are the same for all men. That end," he declared, "is to make men good as men."

But, he continued, "while in fields other than education one might have some sway about the means, there is no dispute about the ends." For Adler, as for many others, the role of the doctor was determined by the fact that physicians are among the last people who can do anything about the problem of disease.

Questions Advanced

Two questions may be asked about this problem, says Adler: Are there any questions one asks about any problem? What am I seeking? And how do I get there? "Means and ends," says Dr. Adler, "are important considerations when we are discussing educational difficulties." What attitude do you take? That is, when studying. We admit that everyone has to be physically comfortable before tackling that first year Spanish or an Essay on Nationalism, but the posture of a position. For instance, there's the way Hank Brakora concentrates: his book in a V for victory formation, arms akimbo, and a ganglerish crook (no pun intended) on one knee. In general, Mary Kay Dark has to have two chairs side by side; one to sit on, the other to lean on—thus she can put her feet on the rungs and sit side-ways.

There, too, there's the Marge Milionski type, who concentrates better with their shoes off. But the aggressive progressing! Ah, they surely place the book in front of them, with graphite determination their feet between two cupped palms, and with an occasional glance peering over the page down. Don't they, Betty Eckel? But let us not overlook the members of the perpetrating group they look at the book incredulously, gaze heavenly, and if you to seek denial of those pretentious assumptions, then when the crisis is past, mortification must have the backing of all the students if it is to fulfill its purposes. Edward Rammus, president, and the various chairmen, Donald Meister, social life; Margaret Milionski, recreation; Helen Raines, campus activities; and James McCormick, professional life, also gave brief addresses, wherein they asked for student co-operation in making this the C. L. C.'s most successful year.
