Dear Students:

With autumn's brisk pace and the chill of night, many are beginning their academic journeys anew. As you embark on this new semester, I encourage you to explore the myriad opportunities available to you. Whether it's joining a club, participating in a sport, or pursuing an academic interest, the possibilities are endless. The most important thing is to engage actively, embrace new experiences, and never stop learning.

As a reminder, Newcomers are often most impressed by our academic prowess and extracurricular activities. Your dedication to these areas will not only help you grow as individuals but will also make Aquinas College an even more vibrant community.

Lastly, I wish you all a great start to the semester and encourage you to reach out if you need any assistance or guidance.

Sincerely,

Time to Plan is NOW

Many of his recent speeches, the Holy Father has reiterated his pless this opportunity to act in the social and political sphere. The necessity of unity and again pleading for timely reforms must at times seem a daunting task to few but the admonition to work must continue.

The Catholic Social Action Conference is scheduled for Oct. 15-17 at the Civic Auditorium. The series of conferences will follow the pattern of events during the first half of September.

For college students miff this opportunity of hearing and conversing with leading authorities in fields of interest. It is opportune to go home and forget about education. Right now some professional and lay advisors administer and students whereby we will be able to comprehend the minds of brains and shed light upon such questions as labor-man­agement, papal encyclicals, youth, family, marriage, labor, insurance, and social legislation.

Courses in secular sociology, sociology, and economic studies are open to the interested public among the colleges; far too many miss that have a mind. The Catholic educational institution is man-producing literate man-producers. It is a commonplace of superstition and are loaded with amenities of cynicism and sophistication. The heat and of course a factored by such standards. It is time to recognize the truth that if college students are to be the leaders of tomorrow (and no one seems to deny that) than must have a training that will offer Christian solutions to the problems of the day.

The college’s program would benefit utilizing the educational advantages of the Dio­cean Social Action Conference.

Once is Enough

At Fatima, Lucy, one of the three shepherds child ren to whom the Blessed Virgin appeared, asked the heavenly Mother, “How often, O Queen of Heaven, “Yes, but Francis will have to say many more times, “then, do it once a month.”

If this little child had any to say many more times, just how often should we pray? New October is right upon us it is commonplace to mention how in the Month of the Rosary, we can be the saving of the world; if we do not pray, the devil will have his day.

Since October is near, the Men’s Union and Women’s Union are organizing the rosary in their organization, and that they should do something to help the world.

Noon devotions will be instituted for special purposes in the chapel. The rosary will be in a Mass of the Blessed Virgin Anne the Unblubly Sacrifice of the Mass. As the central mystery of our religion, the Mass deserves our absolute attention.

Class of '48 Keeps School Trend Going

Doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief, of '48, where goes each?
It appears that some people just never know when they are well off. St. Thomas is happy in the entrance educational arena the following.

A regular detachment of Aquinas students are heading for the halls of Catholic University at Washington, D.C. Entering the law school are Warren Eardley and Gordon Jach, while Robert Bories and George Posts are going in the zoology field. Eunice Mitas has committed her life to social work in a new city same place where Jack is also taking law. The same goes for John Salz-ihn, '49. Also headed for the nation's capital are Ettie Schmid, who plans to use her science major to study psychotherapy, and Robert Sullivan, who is entering the philosophy department and Patricia Sullivan, liberal arts student at C. U.

Also in the county country schools is Hascher has charge of the 5-6 classes at Marne with a special emphasis on ceramics. The class music teacher, all of the 4-5-6 at Huff School; Colleen Hascher is at St. Mary's hospital in the area.

While Geraldine Potts are going into the same city, also is one step ahead of her Cres- tine is at St. Thomas the Apostle church, and Kelley one step ahead of her Cres-

Robert Sullivan

Grand Rapids Magicians Club, and has several articles published in various magic magazines to his credit. He has forayed in the field of the two cancers of modern civilization: secularism and communism.

Father Tarrier called a college education is a beginning, but went on to show that inarguable beginnings may be, the magnitude of their results are often amazing. He cited as examples the stable at Bethlemum and the Kibbutz of Halpern, students were urged to be committed to the order that may come from their present positions, to take advantage of them accordingly.

Social Life Opens

Campus Close-Up

Aquinas' own Touchstone with a dash of Bodleian is a remarkable character. Put on a record of Al Joleen and watch his feet tap out a Sullivan version of the Irish jig. Any good classical or popular record will claim his attention too.

Bob wants to break into show business, and certainly he should have no hard time since he will be remembered for his ability to enthrall any party or any class. He is a priceless character.

Six-Man Football Season Debut

With the opening of the local football season, attendance is riveted upon campus intramural plans for the pigskin followers. Continuing last year's successful program of six-man football, enthusiasts of the game are completing team rosters and the arrangement of schedules.

At a meeting Thursday afternoon, Sept. 23, in the fieldhouse, Athletic Director Joe Nagle addressed the assembled team captains and explained the rules and regulations governing the ten-man game. First games of the season will be played on Monday and regularly thereafter.

Last year's champs were the "Fighting Irish" captained by Gene LaSarge. Other teams in the field were the "Whitfielders" headed by Bob Smolenski, Bill Wester, and Rex O'Connor, and "P. U.'s Pride" with Gene LaSarge. Teams are scheduled soon, in the upperclassmen to assist Board
