Merry Christmas! Enjoy now the cheer.

Xmas Circle Calls For Gift, Santa Here!

"Having something round — We'll have to, for Christmas. 11 doesn't seem to be round, but can it be, or can it be silly to try to make things up to round form, and bring it to the Circle Christmas party?" K. of C. D. J. 12. Santa Claus will be there to distribute presents, and the Circle will be first-rate entertainment, plus commercial, with Amelie and Agatha. Also Free Refreshments!

Program for the evening of fun will include: Jack Baker, Mr. Perkins, a piano number by Ed- wood, 3:30 and 5:30, and a mime by Frank Frennko's pontificies, to all.

Those who appreciate having the Circle's party may get themselves into the habits to get together and box for the dons (the door tax costs the same), but whatever you can give will hopefully bring that need, and prove to the dons the box has a good cause had by all. So don't forget — Dec. 16 — 6 p. m. — K. of C.!

Calendar

Dec. 12—Circle Christmas party — K. of C.
Dec. 16—Circle Club Concert, 2:30 and 5:30 — K. of C.
Dec. 17—Signal Party— Fred, 7 p.m. — Fred.

Faculty Wives Sponsor Tea

Aquinian faculty wives will be hosting a “Sister” Tea in the women's residence hall, 12:30 to 3 p.m., Dec. 15. There are no limitations. Admission is open to public. Proceeds from the donut sale will be used to defray expenses of the newly decorated parlor.

Reading the contacts committee is in charge of the event. Robert J. Rosenbach is designing decorations, and Mrs. C. L. Milnovits is securing musical entertainers. Sondra B. Smith will announce the afternoon of Sunday, Dec. 16, in the women's residence hall, 12:30 to 3 p.m., and in charge of Mrs. J. J. M. Furse and Mrs. T. J. M. M. McGee. Arrangements will be handled by Maids, Marie Westwick.

Dear Santa:

I am always a good dog. I mind when you tell me what to do, and I didn’t bite anybody (t... hard) yet this year. But no­body plays with me anymore be­cause I look so sad all the time. I was wondering if you could bring me a little smile for Christmas.

Thanks so much.

Duke.

Dear Father Nauer:

You probably don’t remember me, but my friends and I are the well-liked and happy group of students you used to know. We are still at Aquinas, and we would like to ask you for something.

Could you possibly arrange for this request? Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Father Nauer.

Dear Santa:

I’m for that tea... we’ve written to you, now it’s your turn to write a Letter To The Editor.

Yours truly,

Mary Beth Hansknecht, the editor of the Aquinas Herald, has always been the maximum. The Herald may or may not be a good college paper, but, to the extent that it is praiseworthy, much of the praise must rest on her efforts.

As a wife Mary Beth is unique. She is the only Aquinas co-ed who is both a full-time student and a married woman, further tribute to her potentialities for work and responsibility. Husband Joe made an introduction here. The name Hansknecht disappeared and was replaced by August.

Space is short. Briefly, we might mention such characteristics as a latent fury, disdain for the trivial, a respect for the outdoors, and a true femininity.

The Rose

By Theresa Heard

Aunt Mattie's garden, now, was an oasis of color, a haven of peace, a place to escape from the stress of daily life. The roses were in full bloom, their petals a riot of reds, pinks, and yellows, their fragrance filling the air. Aunt Mattie tended to them with care, pruning back the dead wood, deadheading the spent flowers.

But the most beloved of all was the Climbing Rose, which had been planted by Aunt Mattie's father. It climbed up the north gable of the house, its tendrils wrapping around the iron cross that topped the roof. The cross was an homage to Aunt Mattie's faith, a reminder that life was a journey, and that the struggles and sorrows of this world were but a prelude to the joy of eternity.

And so Aunt Mattie tended to her roses, pruning back the dead wood, deadheading the spent flowers. And as she worked, she would pause, her eyes fixed on the cross, and her thoughts turned to the promise of the Climbing Rose, and the promise of the eternal reward.

For in the end, it is not the roses that matter, but the promise of the Climbing Rose, and the promise of the eternal reward. For in the end, it is not the roses that matter, but the promise of the Climbing Rose, and the promise of the eternal reward. For in the end, it is not the roses that matter, but the promise of the Climbing Rose, and the promise of the eternal reward.
Calvin Overpowers Tommies, Height Tells 60-37

Martin's 10, Rode's 8, Lead Aquinas Five
Highscorer Roosendahl Flips 25 Points

"A good ball game. We've got a fine little team." And that was just about the size of it. This statement was made by Tommie coach Joel Nagle after his charges had been swamped by the Calvin Knights 60-37 Thursday night at the Catholic Central gym before a capacity crowd of 800 students. For the first few minutes the Tommie cagers traded baskets evenly with the Knights but the speed and height of the latter proved too much for Aquinas. After a tie-up of the score at 3:5 the Knights took to the air and never again were seriously threatened by the Tommies. Mid-way in the first period a burst by Calvin invested the score to 22-13 and at half-time they held the long end of a 28-19 tally. In the second period this 8 point lead held by the Knights was quickly jumped to a 25 point margin. The Tommies, displaying determined spirit, played valiantly to the final buzzer but the score stood at 60-37.

Six feet seven inches of ability in the person of Duane Roosendahl, the evening's high scorer, netted the Knights 25 points. Rimmer Ribbons tagged along with 10, tying Tommie high man, steady Bill Martin. His teammates, Pat Rode, and Calvin Slager and Walcott each bagged 8 markers. A newly formed Aquinas band accompanied the Tommies rooters who were in a conspicuous ma-

Dubridge Defeats Zoeller At Stag

Jack Dubridge, '51, regained the Ping Pong tag, which he had first won in 1947, by defeating Tom Zoeller, '50, at Men's Union Stag, Dec. 5. The Champ overcame a two-game defeat, winning the final three.

Pat Rode and John Neis settled the doubles tournament Wednesday, Dec. 7, defeating Dubridge and Harvey Goshgah a 3-2 saw-saw battle. All five games were close, except the final which was 21 to 12.
