Actions Are Discussed

A meeting was held in Regina on Sunday, March 12 at 10:00 p.m. in response to the Board of Trustees' decision to table the proposal allowing drinking in the dorms. The meeting was organized by Bob Dillon, Pat Frawley and Mary Beth McCrank because the students wanted to find out why the Trustees had tabled the drinking proposal. It had been written properly, had gone through all necessary channels but was tabled. Most students had lost faith in the Board of Trustees. One of the main problems concerning the 156-175 students at Sunday's meeting was the lack of communication between the Board of Trustees and the students. The Trustees seem unaware of the students' feelings and life-style. Their concern seems to center on the reactions of people outside Aquinas rather than those of the students. The two groups are out of touch.

While trying to find some reasons for the actions of the Trustees, the organizers called several Trustees and asked them why they voted as they did. The responses were both hostile and friendly. Some gave their ignorance of the workings of the Board as a reason for the decision to table the proposal. (It was noted at the meeting, however, that they were asked if they wanted to have Mr. Deschaine explain the system at the meeting. They refused.)

Hugh Allen, Vice-President for Development, said he thought the Trustees were aware of the students' point of view and understood it, but had justifiable reasons for tabling the proposal.

Students Show Concern

By Kathi Lutz

The example of precedence on thirteen other campuses, the rationale of the Community Senate and the opinion of the majority of the students on the campus were not enough to bring about a lively discussion of Aquinas College Board of Trustees' decision to table a proposal for a co-ed housing proposal. Next year's proposals, drinking on campus, and co-ed dorm proposals, with all of them being tabled for the next regular board meeting.

Deschaine stated that voting was close on the drinking issue. It is hoped that the further information submitted to the board will be what is needed for a final O.K.

Further action as soon as possible, Mr. Deschaine stated the possibility of polling board members after information can be gotten to them. If such an approach is not taken it would be necessary to wait until May for the next regular board meeting.

Antioch in Ohio was a pioneer in this sort of program. Credit, with the option of taking an additional four hours on campus. Students involved in such a program would provide one with some insight into problems that might accompany liquor privileges. In response to a student wish for further action as soon as possible, Mr. Deschaine stated the possibility of polling board members after information can be gotten to them. If such an approach is not taken it would be necessary to wait until May for the next regular board meeting. Also discussed at the Board meeting was the possibility of re-vision and revision of the visitation dress code. Both of these measures were passed and a 2/3 vote of both residence halls is all that is needed for their implementation.

A second surprise was the passage of a co-ed housing proposal. Next year's proposals, drinking on campus, and co-ed dorm proposals, with all of them being tabled for the next regular board meeting.
With this year's Community Senate elections over, and after a race which almost developed as bloody as last year's, we look forward to a fulfilling and satisfying representation of students by the newly elected officers for the next academic year.

Although enthusiasm in the candidates who I supported and felt would serve the Aquinas Community most satisfactorily was not elected, it is my utmost concern now to see that history does not repeat itself again at Aquinas. It is an urgent and well-felt need to have the student's minds that a problem existed last semester between some people in the Senate and the Board. How quickly we are forgetting more and forgetting the past election, great progress was made. It is, however, our concern now to see that this does not disappear.

For the students who backed other candidates, as well as the candidates who ran, to drop their prejudices, their loss of pride, and start working together to see that history does not repeat itself again at Aquinas Community Senate can truly be the voice of a unified Aquinas student body.

Indians Are Often Forgotten

Americans have an intense pride in their country. "It is the land of the free and the home of the brave." But, all Americans must swallow their pride when they regard white America's treatment of the American Indians.

When Columbus "discovered" America, people were looking at him from the shores. Civilizations as advanced in many ways as the Egyptians were probing Central America before the middle Ages in Europe. When the white man came to America, man gave citizenship.

The history of the New World doesn't begin with an entreprenur Italian or a guy in a dragon, head ship, it begins with a slow continuous migration over one or many routes to the continent. A study of American history shouldn't begin with George Washington but with a study of tribal life in the North American woodlands.

We hear about the glorious Seventh Calvary and George Armstrong Custer, even though the opposing general, Crazy Horse of the Oglala Dakota, won the battle. The American Indians lost the war, however, and were virtually wiped out. The remaining survivors they were locked on reservations (out of sight, out of mind) and forgot their welfare. Today the American Indian population is finally back up to the level that it was at the time of Columbus in 1492.

A deficiency of the American Scene is the lack of印ied and contemporary studies dealing with American Indians have presented and will present their programs through the funding of the All-College Board. A course dealing with American Indians has been introduced on campus. Don't we owe it to the American Indian population is finally back up to the level that it was?

During the week of March 14, 14th many familiar faces will return to the Aquinas College campus. Aquinas Honors activities are being busily planned by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Nelson for the week of the event.

Class reunions Friday night from 8:30 p.m. to 12:00 midnight in the Loutit Room. The special Silver anniversary dinner, will kick off the week-end. Reunions will be held for the classes of 42, 47, 52, 57, 62 and 77. Glee and Joanne Smarr, chairs of the reunions, extended invitations to spouses and guests of alumni for this event.

Saturday’s activities will include tours of campus, (Tom Kottak, chairman) a luncheon for the ladies, (Norma McKnight and Mary Callan, chairmen) and a drama production, (Cheryl Wallace, director). "A Midsummer Night's Dream". Edgerton's "Checkmates." Cost of tickets to the ball are $5.00 per couple and the cash bar will be open in the lounge adjoining the ballroom.

Study In Summer?

Summer school this year has two components. First, the previous year, Summer School Without Walls and Summer School on Campus. The on campus program begins June 19 and ends July 27. Summer School Without Walls schedules are determined in the contract between the student and professor.

either is sham or confusion. To ask some one to pay for an educational experience here or any place else without having defined the terms and goals of that experience is nothing less than dishonest. To print a college catalog which gives no choice of what this institution plans to do or what it does not plan to do for a student is maintained in a questionable philosophically. It is naive to assume that any student would embody all the stated goals of an institution in four year’s time. However, at least the student know what is expected of him.

Drinking in the dorm is not a cause, it is a symptom of this College's frenzied drive "to be with it" at all costs. The present dorm situation is not the fault of the student, the fault of the student is not the fault of the "watering spots" such as the Lounge, Rape, and Coffee. This is a case of "Nothing is more provincial than we see around us."

Baseball Practicing

by Gary Stefanik

With the hardwood floors cleared of basketball last week, baseball could be seen zinging through the air. After a meeting last Wednesday, Coach Kahler had his pitchers and catchers start to loosen their arms up. The next day Aquinas continued on their grueling week on the road by playing St. Joseph's. Aquinas lost to Bowling Green State University, 10-8, in a game that was started the day before. The big thing in this game was that Aquinas failed to come through with 14 wins and three losses. A good all around player, Joe White was selected to the All-Ohio team. Joe White is a senior and will be ready for the season and what it will bring.

Baseball Practicing

by Gary Stefanik

With the basketball season over at Aquinas, and just about over for most other colleges, I would like to leave a few after thoughts. (A few thoughts to keep you over till next season.)

A basketball coach of mine once said, "Basketball is a mini-life, crammed into a coffin."

Basketball instills sportsmanship, pride, commitment, and improves your old ones, with practice. He has four players on the freshmen team who are carrying a team, sometimes

During the game he is faced with decisions affecting the outcome of the game, just as one would in his own life. He must understand his natural abilities and work his team to his advantage. Last year's leading pitcher, Steve Krynock is back and he brings with him his 5-2 record from last year and that deceptive fast ball.

Transferring back a year's absence on the Aquinas campus.

Paul Nist looks to be the second starter for the Tommies. Two years ago he had a 3-2 record but both those losses were one run ball games and in one of them he gave up one earned run. Also testing the hill are Scott Marzec, Denny Molnar and a host of others.

This year's schedule finds itself on the same face on as it last year. The only difference is a little bit later than it always did. Lineup changes are player every day on the schedule except one and will be something to watch how the pitching comes out. If they hold up, look for the Tommies to be tough, if not we will be back around that .500 figure again.
