What's Wrong in Senate? Obstacles From Bottleneck

ThatYoung Man which is asking more and more as the school year progresses.

First: No Organization

First of all, it is evident there is a lack of organization and planning in the Senate. This doesn't mean that no meetings have been called during the second semester, with the implications that are so true. Instead, one experienced with organizational activities knows that lack of adequate planning and useful organization are not an example of a permanent prescription for slow death to an organization.

Second: Precrastination

Secondly, he believes that it is functioning on a policy of procrastination. Anyone reading the minutes of these meetings will be quite aware of this fact. One good example of this policy might be the parking issue. After numerous meetings have been held, a few "No Parking" stickers have been placed around the campus, but — the problem still remains.

Another good example is the problem of participation in the National Federation of Catholic College Students. At the first meeting of the year, a bylaw was brought up and talked. At the last meeting it was again brought up and again tabled. A debate!

REMEMBER IN PRAYER

Donald Maitner, his wife, and daughters, Sharon Lynn and Donald, killed in an automobile accident March 8.

Political Rostrum

The late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio bested "like" in the South Dakota, Nebraska, and Ohio elections. Nevertheless, Eisenhower was awarded the Republican nomination.

Reduction to the Senate is a long process of careful planning which is clearly seen in the fact that there are no regular meetings or votes. The problem is not determined by presidential elections but ran a poor third in the Republican primaries of that year.

The Republicans seem very happy with the idea of installing color television sets for the AQUINAS faculty and student body. Only in eternity will we know the full effects of the pretzels that were sent up for our recovery.

The suddenness with which life can be snatched from us leaves no time for prayer whatsoever. Hence the urgency of living constantly in God's grace and to be prepared to meet God in judgment. Modern ways of travel, car, plane, train, each is fraught with the possibility of being the instrument of death. The suddenness with which life can be snatched from us leaves no time for prayer whatsoever.

The problem that I believe that I can see is that what was reported to me meant, after the occurrence, facts probably will known to Aquinites. Consciousness was snatched away from all three of us at the moment of impact of the two cars and although Sisters Mildred and Celeste recovered the use of their faculties soon after arriving in the hospital, I remained, for five or six days, oblivious of all that went on.

When I returned to consciousness, Sister Celeste's presence in the car had been wiped entirely from my memory, as were also the other circumstances surrounding our return trip from the convent in Wright. Thus when the St. John's hospital, Following the accident, the hospital, I remained, for five or six days, oblivious of all that went on.

And yet those who were present at the scene of the accident moments after it occurred, already believe that I was completely unaware of what was going on or what I was doing. I directed the rescue team to the hospital, without any false or any other thought whatever. Hence the urgency of living constantly in God's grace and to be prepared to meet God in judgment.

As to the details of the catastrophe, I can only tell what was reported to me long after the occurrence, facts probably will known to Aquinites. Consciousness was snatched away from all three of us at the moment of impact of the two cars and although Sisters Mildred and Celeste recovered the use of their faculties soon after arriving in the hospital, I remained, for five or six days, oblivious of all that went on.

Accident Evokes Great-Heartedness of Aquinites

By Sister M. Gonzaga, O.P.

At 1:10 p.m. on April 13, 1956, our Congregation, by the Aqjuinas faculty and nurses especially, three each day, were made aware of the existence of pretzels. Their presence was the result of their being an instrument of death. The suddenness with which life can be taken without our knowing the full effects of the pretzels that were sent up for our recovery.

A closed house with death such as ours followed by the slow and appallingly long days opens up worlds of thought and brings to realization things many formerly unknown or merely passed over as matter of course. One of the first impressions is the wonder of achievements of present-day medicine, the efficiency and expertness of doctors, and the solicitous and devoted service of our nurses. We experienced them all. Our nurses especially, three each day, were made to put in "active" duty with never an idle moment. The care of the particularly impatient patient.

The efforts of doctors and nurses were not the least great because of the kindness of God obtained by prayer. This was supported by the devoted membership of the Congregation, by the Aqjuinas faculty and student body. Only in eternity will we know the full effects of the pretzels that were sent up for our recovery.

The hundreds of Masses offered and heard, the assurance of the many prayers recited, the information that the aquinus too were engaged in prayers for and that their little children were including us in their daily orisons were all ample proof of the great-heartedness and generosity of our Aquinites family.

We hope that their loyalty will be more evident to the Aquinites family. We hope that the students will support all the projects to the pay the debt. Few students exercised them­selves enough to write the news of Sister Rita Lucille'sbid to be renominated. We hope that their loyalty will be more evident to the Aquinites family.

Artists Explore Drawing Fundamentals

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Gerald Mast, in art, a group of fifteen Aquinans are learning the fundamentals of drawing and design. The beginning drawing class explores the various drawing media: charcoal, conte' crayon, and brush and ink. Subjects for this beginning class include still life and objects of head, and quick sketching.

Mrs. Mast informs the other students they are welcome to visit the studio and see the works. The studio is equipped with all new furniture—easels, benches and tables.

Dr. Prange Advises Foreign Students

Dr. W. W. Prange, instructor in German and geography, has been appointed advisor for foreign students at Aquinas by Msgr. A. F. Bukowski. Dr. Prange was himself a foreign student at Marquette university as a Fulbright scholar. G. Edward Phillips, instructor in economics and accounting, is the committee which prepared the Freedom Agenda at the Y. W. C. A. under the auspices of the League of Women Voters. Similar programs are available in 400 centers in the nation.

An article by George F. J. La Duane is popular with students in French, Design, and Scholasticism. It is entitled, "A Study of French microfilm." This instrument is now available in all libraries.

If you use an executive-looking young man walking through the halls of Aquinas, it is not a sales- man trying to sell Mr. DeBoer a new kind of floor wax; it is probably Carl Duane Brunn, aspiring business administration student. One reason for his neat suit is that he goes to work at a business administration student. Another reason he takes in all college activities. In his sophomore interest he takes in all college activities. In his senior year he was class treasurer and has been a leader and supporter of the Grand Rapids Catholic Central, since but because of the active interest he has been a leader and supporter of such projects as the car sharing.
