T.V. Workshop Reveals Plans

TV Workshop. Under the direction of Carroll C. Kearley, instructor in English, has announced its plans for the coming year. The first show presented by the group this year will be on Nov. 22.

The Workshop plans to do seven educational programs, each of which will include a short film and discussion by students and faculty members. Also to be presented are two dramas, The Persian Women and an original script. A three-play, a contemporary comedy, will be performed on a closed circuit show.

Students participating in the Workshop are: Michael Nowakowski, Rita Labertoux, and Joe Bowman; freshmen; Dennis M. Williams, Susanne Meyer, Marilyn Taylor, Shirley Hartvig, Margaret Jones and Kathleen Beth, sophomores; Thomas Connaughton, Carol Smith, Phyllis Kees and Rita Kline, juniors; Joseph Janik and Riley Bennett, seniors.

Mrs. Prange Reveals Plans About Polio Injections

Mrs. W. W. Prange, health center nurse, urges all students who have not had all their polio injections to do so now. The first two injections may be given one month apart, the second three months later. Unless the doses are completed, they do not give immunity. A person who has had one of the three types of polio is still susceptible to the other two kinds unless he has had the injections.

Aquinas offers the vaccine at cost to full-time students. If anyone feels unable to meet the cost, he should contact Mrs. Prange at the health center, Oct. 27.

Week-End Preparations Reach Full Swing

World's Fair Forms Theme For Carnival

Preparations for the Gala Week-End, Nov. 7-9, are now in full swing. Booth chairsmen have been elected and ideas for decoration are being carried out around the World's Fair theme.

The 1959 Plymouth, done in stylish black with distinctive lines of design, is on display in front of the Administration building. John Gardella, general chairman, can often be seen driving the plate about in publicizing the week-end.

Carnival functions will be in the Inaugural Ball in the Louis XV room of the Manger hotel, Nov. 7. Lewis Allen and his orchestra will provide music from 9 to 1. Co-chairmen are Sally Coughlin, GR, senior, and David Golczynski, GR, junior.

Clowns Choose Candidates

King and queen of the ball will be chosen from the following candidates: seniors Thomas Misch, Munson, and Geraldine Radwiski, junior; and Dawn Argue, GR; sophomores Rosalee Korte and Nancy Hoban, GR; and Pat McGavin has not selected as the Herald went to press.

A ham dinner will be served in the college cafeteria, Sunday, Nov. 9. The menus includes baked ham with vegetables, salad, rolls, and an assortment of pies for dessert. The meal will be served at 6:30. Cost is 75 cents.

Choir Will Present Handel, Mozart at Dec. 7 Concert

Aquinas College Choir, under the direction of Carroll C. Kearley, will present its annual Christmas concert, Sunday, Dec. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the chapel.

The concert will last approximately two hours and include sacred and secular works of the period from early Baroque to late Romantic.

The works of the 14th century Pearl of the Psalms and Handel’s Messiah will be included. Selections from Bach’s cantatas will be given and the chorus will also perform songs by Mozart, Schubert, and Dvorak.

Activities Throughout State Engage Faculty Members

Sister M. Bernarda, O.P., associate professor of education, has recently addressed the following groups on various aspects of reading: Illinois Optometric association at Chicago, Sept. 20; Midwest Christian Teachers' association at Holland Christian High School, Oct. 17; Optometric Extension Interna­tional Study Group at Phoenix Pacific hotel, Oct. 24; Michigan Education association, at the Pontiac, Oct. 27.

Four of the faculty, Sister M. Blundina, O.P., Sister M. Gonzaga, O.P., Miss Gertrude Horgan, and Robert J. Clarke, attended the annual meeting of the Association of Catholic Colleges of the Midwest at Orchard Lake, Oct. 29.

Three faculty members will give speeches Nov. 8. Miss Elizabeth Noel, instructor in English, will be a member of a panel on "Teach­ing Great Books" at the fall meet­ing of the Michigan College En­glish association in East Lansing. Lewis B. Clinegman, associate pro­fessor of history, will address the postal transportation service. Ken­neth J. Marin, associate professor of economics, will speak on College Omnibus over WOOD-TV.

Mr. Marin will attend the board meeting of the National Credit union association in Pittsburgh, Nov. 15.

Monomignar Arthur P. Bukowski, president, will represent Aquinas at college in Potaskey, Nov. 11. He will attend meetings of the state advisory commission on civil rights at East Lansing, Nov. 14, and of the Michigan College association at Ann Arbor, Nov. 21.

Sister M. Malachi, O.P., Sister Rose Carlo, O.P., librarians, and Sister M. Harriet, O.P., of the edu­cation department, attended a meet­ing of the librarian unit of the Catholic Library association at Sacred Heart seminary, Detroit, Oct. 27.

New Department Sets Up Office

New department has been established at Aquinas with offices in the conference room.

Working in the new office are Patrick McNeely, of Dexter, and Mr. Daniel E. Thomas, who has been appointed by Mrs. Mary E. Funk of Grand Rapids as secretary.

Mr. McNeely, while unable to reveal the exact nature of the work, indicated Aquinas; that he and Mr. Babiak are preparing plans that will immediately affect the further development of the college.

At present McNeely is handling publicity for Aquinas. He commented, "I think there is more activity here than at any other college of comparable size that I have seen." He remarked also that the spirit of cooperation on the part of students and faculty seems to be outstanding.

Reveals Plans For Carnival

As an attraction for children, Buck Barry, TV cowboy, will perform a gilt screen show in the College cafeteria, Sunday, Nov. 9, from noon until 6 p.m. The menu will include baked ham with vegetables, salad and rolls and an assortment of pies for dessert. The meal will be served at 6:30. Cost is 75 cents.

R. Lodato makes returns to A. Mc Neely, ticket chairman.
Political Patterns

By Thomas Mish

Among her favorite sons, the South boasts of two governors who are leading the anti-integration forces. The one called Faulcon needs no introduction. The other running an unappreciated second, is Governor Almond of the proud, old State of Virginia.

While these two garner the headlines, the other governors in the South are facing or avoiding the same issue in various ways. Some of them have been successful in maintaining segregation.

This is true especially in the Deep South, that is, in North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana. A set of these states have laws which will close the public schools if the classes are ever forced to "mix." Only in Louisiana have these laws been court-tested, and the courts found them to be unconstitutional. But Governor Long has little intention of submitting to the mandate of the law.

In Florida there are no laws calling for school closures. Governor Collins is said to have some plans to ease the integration problem, should it arise. But except for one Negro in a graduate school, there is no integration.

As remaining states progress has been slow, but there has been progress. In Maryland and in Tennessee, Governors McKennin and Curbow have shown a similar degree of tolerance in the integration movement. We have in this state a governor who has shown no tolerance in his opinions, although people know him better as a singing ex-tenor or as a former baseball commissioner.

His name is Albright. Chances are we will call him "Happy." He is a political character, as far as Southern governors are concerned, who is not afraid of making headine,

Dear Aquinites,

Have you heard about Mercy Central's annual Christmas Bazaar? It's happening on Nov. 22, from 3 to 11 p.m. and all day Sunday, Nov. 25, at St. Andrew's gym. A donation of 10 to 15 cents will get you in. And on Sunday both breakfast and lunch will be served. It's a great way to get some money to raise to help the Jesuits of the mission of the poor.

A GREAT MAN'S PASSING

The month of October has been touched with sadness by the passing of a great man, Pope Pius XII. Men throughout the world, men of many faiths, have bowed their heads in recognition of the loss which has occurred by the death of this man. Despite being elected to the Papal Chair in a period of great unrest and strife, Pope Pius XII was and will remain in history, the symbol of world peace.

Pope Pius XII was an extraordinary man. He was that very rare combination of scholar and diplomat; a man of engaging personality, keen intelligence, foresight, with an ardent desire to be a modern man, in sympathy with modern society to which he labored to adapt the administration of the Church.

The gifts the Pope brought to the Papacy became manifest almost immediately. As early as 1927, as Father Eugenio Pacelli, he had earned a doctorate in theology and another in canon law, and had added a third, in canon law, and was appointed professor of canon law and diplomacy.

He was named titular of Cardenal Archbishop of Sardi, Papal Nuncio, and Cardinal. He served as Papal Secretary of State and was named Chamberlain of the Holy Roman Church in 1935.

All this time his modern, intellectual spirit was apparent. At a time when the Nazi threats were somewhat pertinent, the future Pope traveled by this speedy, modern mode of transportation. When he was named Papal Legation in Buenos Aires, the Nazis removed all the Catholic press in Buenos Aires he learned Portuguese in a few weeks just for the occasion. He gave in a seventh language he could speak.

At the death of Pope Pius XII, despite Nazi and Fascist opposition, Cardinal Pacelli was elected Pope, receiving all votes except his own.

As Pope Pius XII has a long list of accomplishments to his credit. During his reign of 19 years, which is the entire life of world peace. During his reign the Pope gave audience to 33 saints and beatified 168 blesseds. He professed, defended or propagated Christianity. He made this point with great enthusiasm in his homilies. He also was an active and vigorous proponent of the Church. From his weekly radio broadcasts to his participation in impressive ceremonies in Buenos Aires he learned Portuguese in a few weeks just for the occasion. This gave him a seventh language he could speak.

Some of the mystery that seems to shroud the Papacy in the modern age is not necessarily to be attributed to Pope Pius XII. He was a bulwark against communism and no compromise between communism and Catholicism is possible. And he proclaimed the dogma of the virgins a good mother must also be an active and vigorous proponent of the Church. From his weekly radio broadcasts to his participation in impressive ceremonies in Buenos Aires he learned Portuguese in a few weeks just for the occasion. This gave him a seventh language he could speak.

When we think of communism, we tend to regard it chiefly from one or both of two points of view: either we look upon it as a movement—a concrete expression of the materialistic dialectical materialism which is, as it were, a protest by the downtrodden against their exploiters. Both of these points of view have a tendency to commentator communism, I believe; both of them appear to be encouraged by communist propaganda; and both of them, it seems to me, misrepresents the central point in the actual historical development of Soviet communism.

That these two notions of communism as a philosophic pose and a lying promise are, in fact, both of them, it seems to me, misrepresents the central point in the actual historical development of Soviet communism.

The intellectual soon finds, of course, that a philosophic pose and a lying promise are, in fact, both of them, it seems to me, misrepresents the central point in the actual historical development of Soviet communism.

As long as we continue to regard Soviet communism as primarily a philosophic movement or as primarily an economic proponent, just so long, I fear, will we fail to do the essential reality of Soviet communism. Neither is a reason suggested nor a lie of bread can, in the long run, deter a personal power.

This thing is designed to carry a relatively few men to a point of view, I think, alone explains the real oddity is in the leadership. Few people would pick out an intellectual as the head of the movement. The intellectuals, the very rare combination of scholar and diplomat: a man who has shown no tolerance in his opinions, although people know him better as a singing ex-tenor or as a former baseball commissioner.

His name is Albright. Chances are we will call him "Happy." He is a political character, as far as Southern governors are concerned, who is not afraid of making headlines, but he is getting things done.

Perilous Statistics

Just think, men! The summary of enrollments at Aquinas shows that there are about 4,000 students, of men and of women, for 1957. This is counting 84 student nurses. These are the figures at Aquinas for the entire year.
