Aquinas students will have the opportunity to hear one of the foremost experts on U.S. and world scientific advancements as the Student Commission presents Mr. Earl Ubell on campus Nov. 10.

Mr. Ubell has the unique distinction of being a writer, a reporter, and a scientist. As a writer he held the post of science editor of the New York Herald Tribune for 14 years. In addition, he has been acknowledged to such notables as the Saturday Evening Post, The Reader's Digest, The American Scientist, and The Ladies Home Journal.

In the reporting field, he has covered almost every major science and medical story during the past 15 years. He authored the first report of the Salk polio vaccine, the first atomic energy peace conference, the first Soviet successful American satellite, the first manned mission to the moon, the U.S. and Russia, and the Kinsey report. As a scientist, he has engaged in actual scientific research, having several of his papers published in major scientific journals.

A man with such an outstanding and varied background is probably one of the few really qualified to subject for the lecture, "Scientific Advancements Between the Free World and the Communist World." At present he holds the position of science editor of the New York Times. Any man with a similar background is usually too involved in his own research to spend the time to write as much as Mr. Ubell has invested in the writing of this lecture.

The lecture will be held in the all-purpose room of St. Stephen's school, 740 Gladstone, S.E. Tickets are $1.50 each. Mr. Ubell will be available for immediate interest to college students ... "The Critic of Faith and the Skeptic of Science".

The lecture will be held in all-class periods and the lecture at 8 p.m. in the Weis Center auditorium. Mr. Ubell will be available for immediate interest to college students ... "The Critic of Faith and the Skeptic of Science".

The Aquinas Student Handbook and the Student Information Director will be available at the Student Commission office and may be picked up at any time. The Aquinas Student Handbook will be available at the Student Commission office and may be picked up at any time.

The VCS will present the second film in its series, "The Hall Of Fame," on Nov. 10. The film, The Football Hall Of Fame, will be shown at 8 a.m. and the film will be shown at 2:30 p.m. and 5:00 p.m.

More on the NSA

Mr. Thomas E. Detcheule, Dean of Men, has outlined plans for a new dormitory on campus which are currently undergoing careful study and evaluation. The dormitory is one of the few projects which has been growing steadily, despite the addition of a new wing to begin Fall 1968.

The picture we get of some of today's leaders remains as a nega- tive one to many. But, our leaders are seemingly words used only to perpetrate a mythology. Only the real organizations, the occasional thinker and the courageous dissenter try to make these words meaningful, maybe they have a future.

The Aqua regia is planning a statewide summer at the 20th annual convention of the NSA. On Saturday, Mr. John Washag, President of the Michigan Region, will speak here November 26.

Subject: National Student Association

Dear Editor,

I believe that the National Student Association (NSA) is the ultimate organization for student leadership and activism. By being affiliated with NSA, a student council can gain valuable resources and support to address the needs of their campus.

However, I also believe that NSA must be held accountable for its actions. The NSA's connection with the CIA and other government agencies raises serious concerns about its integrity and宗旨.

In conclusion, I urge all student organizations to carefully consider their affiliation with NSA and to demand transparency and accountability from this organization.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Don't Miss "Under Milk Wood," Nov. 15-18
Mr. Herbert Martin, English professor, speaks on "Under Milk Wood"

Essentially, two of the themes that interest me in Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood" are: the place of the individual in society and the place of society in the individual. It is within the framework of the dream that the characters find the freedom that is not lacking in their waking moments; but this freedom is fraught with illusion and reality. Surely this is a time-worn theme, and why should Thomas wish to concern himself with a theme that interests me in Dylan Thomas* — one at the front, and one at the back of the room."

Stringfellow Views Race Relations

Stringfellow sees Detroit as a momentous turning point. It was the first riot in which the custom­ary police strategy of bottling it up and letting it burn itself out did not work. He noted the "white ghetto" and it was this that prompted the use of federal troops, setting "an ominous pre­cedent.

Our destination in Charlestown and Dearborn, and we're only 10 minutes away.

Mr. Stringfellow seemed pre­sentimental throughout his talk. He compared white Americans in Nazi, saying that what whites actions in the past have indicated a com­mitment to exterminate the Ne­gro.

He said that as this cycle of violence cannot be ruptured. Mr. Stringfellow proposed a solution: the city's times with non-violence. "Whites must ac­complish non-violence," he said, "for the white people won't be that hu­man."

Stringfellow seemed one of the key aspects of Stringfellow's apparent pessimism may be his own personal experience. Many whites realize the danger to themselves but..."he said, "hopeless," and "...the hopelessness of the human race..."

Sights and Sounds

In man basically good or evil? The movie, adapted from Golding's novel, is a study of this question already so well handled into a world of dreams, indeed, as a subject for study. "The shape of history is as black as the night," as the narrator says, and with a vision in the light of salvation history is a subject for study. Robert Golding's view of the theme of this film; that is, to insist that the British are Americans Negroes are more of them than their "masters." Tracing the development of the Negro race, the movie is more magical and perhaps more dangerous de­scriptive of the white mind.

The dominant social ethic in modern America is that of white superiority; the white man is heir to this ethic and all that has come with it. Mr. Stringfellow explained that the concept of "lib­eration" was a theological one, referring to changes in the exis­tencies of life; food, shelter, etc.

The three areas in which Stringfellow pointed out the 19th century and 20th century in education, economics and cul­ture. He said, "...we are drowning and we deserve itl"

The reader-viewer is invited to let down with a bottle of Nehi grape pop and read a twenty-minute summary of the film. Stringfellow seemed quite pes­simistic about the future, but he did not depict the future as a point of no return. He suggested a commitment to exterminate the Ne­gro. He said that as this cycle of violence cannot be ruptured. Mr. Stringfellow proposed a solution: the city's times with non-violence. "Whites must ac­complish non-violence," he said, "for the white people won't be that hu­man."

The talk ended with this alert: "Pesimistic hope is better than drowning, and we deserve it!"

The resolution described black power as “the establishment of black power and influence and control by the black people in America.”

“White students,” the resolution declared, “must not put themselves in the position of defensemen who is both a white middle class to the “need for draft resisters. Legal advice tee, which will supervise the work also be arranged by the commit­tee, which will supervise the work of the NSA draft desk.

The delegates also approved a resolution on urban hunger, calling for programs in the ghetto which would be controlled by the residents of low-income areas but financed by federal money. These would include co-operative hous­ing projects, health and recrea­tional facilities, and community schools in which local residents participate in making policy and choosing staff. The resolution also called for urban universi­ties to “take an active role in social change by implementing such programs as credit for stu­dents living in the ghetto, allowing ghetto dwellers to make use of university facilities... and elimination of the universities’ financial interest in the ghetto which serve to perpetuate it.”

In an area more familiar to most of the delegates, the con­gress declared in a resolution on student power that “all regula­tions of a non-academic nature which apply solely to students should be determined only by students. 1. In this category were such matters as regulating and financing student organizations, determining dorm hours, and establishing any housing or social rules.

Administrative and educational policies of universities should be determined jointly by students and faculty, and admission, and financial aid, should be determined jointly by students and the faculty. The faculty, in turn, should be free from institutional censorship.”

The delegates determined “that the faculty of any college or university will have a continuous working relationship with the students.”

The college and all of Grand Rapids will be treated to a great night of basketball on Saturday, Nov. 14, at the West Catholic gym. The alumni will play the Varsity team. The team has been hampered with an overweight problem but has consistently improved through the season. It is 4th for the team at the Taylor meet and last year he won the Furniture City meet and placed 5th.

A big surprise for the team has been Bob Faber, a freshman from Greenville, Michigan. He is the constant surprise who starts at the back of the pack and works his way up to the front. He finished the race in 11:00. After run with an injury, Don Atkins of Greenville, Michigan, also was the needed help for the Tommies at the Taylor meet as he took the place of injured Gene Devereaux and placed 10 and 23rd for the Messerschmidts.

This reporter made a false guess at saying the Misfits would win. The team has done a consistent job with defense but just can’t muster up an offense. This is one of the four games the Tommies will drop this season. The team is 6-2 and 33-0 to the Farm. The freshmen Upper Ten will have a little more experience in defense because of lack of interest forfeited but the upper classmen, who would have been freshmen fellows, maybe you’ll learn next year.
