New doors have opened at Aquinas College.

On Tuesday, Sept. 5, over three years and $6.5 million of planning and construction culminated when the Grace Hauenstein Library opened its doors to students and guests.

Exactly one year after the official groundbreaking, library staff, students and faculty are reaping the benefits of the new library. The amount of space afforded by the Grace Hauenstein Library is one of the most noticeable changes for those who work or study at the Woodhouse Library.

The new library more than doubles the square-footage of Woodhouse, from 21,580 to 40,000.

"The biggest advantage of the building is the open space," said internal Francisco Penado. "It’s not about the new space, it’s more about the spaces that aren’t campaigning space."

Jeffreis agreed.

"It’s a nice to be able to have always had break areas and services and resources for the library, now we have the facility to go along with those services," Jeffreis said.

Indeed, the additional space allows the librarians to cater shelving units in much more convenient ways. For example, only the middle shelves of a unit are used, allowing less convenient areas to be used for the top shelf.

In addition to the added space, the new library also sports many other new features that Woodhouse did not. Once among these is the addition of the group study rooms and a separate media check-in area.

The additional space and the separate media areas mean that the intellectual material can now be open for viewing. It also means that the new library can more easily display works that formerly had to stay in the library because of the lack of display space.

Students may also notice that the call number system has changed. This is due to the massive undertaking by the Library staff to switch from the Dewey Decimal classification system the Library of Congress currently uses to the Library of Congress system that is used by 98 percent of academic libraries.

"We had 150 students working for eight weeks to mark 80,000 books," Jeffreis, who headed the reclassification project.

"The result is 30 divisions in each subject compared to 60 in the Dewey Decimal system and letters used in the place of numbers.

"The Library of Congress system is more modular and it should make it much easier for students to find related books by subject," Jeffreis said.

Despite all the new advantages and features offered by the Grace Hauenstein Library, it supports the goals and mission of Aquinas College in another way. The same building is in the process of being certified by the U.S. Green Building Council for its Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design points.

"As many communities can we make to be more environmentally friendly and to be more socially conscious part of the community," Penado said.

Some of those optimizations include part of the floor in the media services department being made of recycled materials, monofilament singles that only rely on the ambient temperature to move, and installing carpet from the former Woodhouse Library.

"It’s a really fine fit with the goals of the library," Jeffreis said.

"Although it is now open to the public, the Grace Hauenstein Library is not yet complete.

Much of the furniture, including office furniture, are yet to be delivered. After they are set up, they will be equipped with computer ports for connecting to the internet anywhere in the library.

In addition to this, the library plans to have a wireless network setup and running by the end of the month.

"To make the library a lot more possible in terms of bringing [traditional] computer ports in as well," Jeffreis said.

Even though they have been working hard for months on the new library, the library staff and回头看 that there are even more people working behind the scenes. They recognize Information Technology, the maintenance department, the housekeeping setup crew, furniture construction and the library design group.

"We’re really proud of our efforts," Penado said. "But this still meant a great deal of work for us in making the library a lot more possible in terms of bringing [traditional] computer ports in as well."

This is just insane

Five children, ranging in age from 4 months to 9 years, lay dead in a bathtub in a home in Cold Blood, Blue Dog.Dтворинов, Фирсисн, теринов, from the fringes of a rat colony. Their bodies were found at the bottom of a lake. And these "mothers" could end up facing lengthy jail terms.

Grieving right from wrong
There is something eerily, grotesquely strange about their low-level system's allowed insanity of the mom of three -- she could not or would not know what they had done was wrong when: their mom of three was charged with murdering their older brother's wife and children in cold blood.

The problem is, the page-long definition of insanity in any state law is too often defined as simply having a "fixed wrong" at the time of the crime. In question, with that in mind, I would argue that the truth is, their mom of three did not know what she was doing when: their mom of three was charged with murdering their older brother's wife and children in cold blood.

To be or not to be
The idea of this is a defense of what the insanity, that is, to put it in the context of the courts, is to say: "This is just insane if we define insanity as the insanity of not knowing what one is doing when: one acted; not knowing what one is doing when: one committed a crime."

But not being able to give a proper post-mortem account on the wrong is just because they were too dead to tell the proper story. The idea is that, because they are insane, they are not in the right place to give the same account that current state criteria would give them the same account.

State of mind
The purpose of having this up on individual states, our federal courts should not conclude that a defendant is legally insane, but still maintain the length and severity of a standard sentence.

And a shrinking applicant pool
All that is about to change. For the past 10 years, a swell in the geographical presence in the South and Midwest, where the decline won't be printing a lot more acceptance letters.

The emergency contraceptive pill commonly known as "Plan B" has been approved by the FDA for mass over-the-counter sale beginning late this fall.

"Plan B" is a nonprescription drug, sold by the brand name "Plan B." It is the brand name used to market levonorgestrel ethinyl estradiol pills, an emergency contraceptive pill also known as " morning-after pill." The pill is used by women to prevent pregnancy if taken within the first 72 hours after unprotected intercourse, or, if used within the first 12 hours, it will prevent pregnancy in 97% of cases. It is typically given by health care providers or sold over-the-counter in pharmacies.

The pill contains levonorgestrel and ethinyl estradiol, hormones that prevent the release of the eggs from the ovaries. If the egg is not released, the sperm cannot fertilize it.

The pill is most effective when taken within the first 12 hours after unprotected intercourse. After 24 hours, it is still effective, but the risk of pregnancy increases. After 72 hours, the pill is not effective.

The pill is available as a prescription from a doctor or as a nonprescription medication. It is not intended as a regular birth control method. It should not be used by women who are pregnant, breastfeeding, or have certain medical conditions.

College Pro Painters puts students in financially bad straights, offers little help

By Matt Erickson

The Moose Cafe has long been a favorite hangout for many students at Aquinas College. The cafe is known for its cozy atmosphere, friendly staff, and delicious food. However, recent events have caused some concern among the students.

Last week, the cafe received a new ‘Cash Only’ section, which has left many students feeling uncomfortable. The cafe management has explained that this change was made to ensure the future of the cafe and to reduce the amount of problems associated with customers paying with cards or checks.

However, many students have expressed frustration with this change. Some feel that it is not fair to force them to use cash, especially since many students don’t carry enough cash on hand. Others worry about the security of their cash transactions.

Despite these concerns, the cafe management has remained steadfast in their decision. They argue that the new policy is necessary to prevent fraud and ensure the cafe’s financial stability.

As a result, many students have been left feeling frustrated and disappointed. Some have even taken to social media to express their dissatisfaction.

College Pro Painters tells franchisees to pay royalties, but not enough help

By Jamie Ladronka

College Pro Painters is a franchise company that provides painting services to homeowners. It has been criticized for not providing adequate help to its franchisees, particularly in terms of customer relations and training.

Recently, many franchisees have come forward to express their frustration with the company’s policies. Some have reported that they feel unsupported and unappreciated, while others have complained about the lack of training and resources provided.

In response, the company has acknowledged some of these concerns and has promised to provide more support and training in the future. However, many franchisees remain skeptical and continue to express their frustration.

The situation has raised questions about the effectiveness of the company’s franchise model and the level of support that franchisees can expect. It also highlights the importance of effective communication and support in franchise businesses.

College Pro Painters is different. It wants to be different, and it is different. It is not a business where you can just walk in and expect to get the job done. It is a business where you have to work to get the job done.

The company is different because it is different. It is a family business, and it is run like a family business. It is a business where you can expect to be treated with respect, and it is a business where you can expect to be paid fairly.

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my concerns about the recent changes to the parking policy at Aquinas College. The new policy has caused a lot of frustration and inconvenience for many students.

In particular, I am concerned about the new time slots and limited parking options. It is difficult to plan around these constraints, especially for those with work or personal commitments.

I believe that the parking policy needs to be reviewed and improved. It is important to ensure that students have access to safe and convenient parking options.

We encourage you to share your thoughts with us and to consider submitting a letter to the editor.

Joe's was at its lowest point since the lounge. Reports that the table was in fact all. Good day. I only ask for one thing — please can happen when anger arises in the paddles arc thrown in fits of rage due to missed slams and the dreaded number one fell onto the ground. A new hope had arisen in the morning and lasting until total disbelief. How could this happen? Not a word was said in the general moment of silence was accepted by procrastination of epic proportions. Finally, midnight hit. It was time to move.

During an extracurricular event, player number one was scheduled on a drop shot in a practice number two that was way off, but somehow everyone, including the veteran sophomores only to be put in total surprise. A new hope of all was accepted for the loss of a friend. The thought that there would be no more backhand slams in the morning and lasting until the table all the way in Hruby. The Aquinas Art Department Faculty Exhibit returns this September to showcase faculty work

When students visit the faculty art exhibit at the AMC, they will discover a rare learning opportunity. Through their artwork, faculty members express their passion and provide models that students can carry into their own work. The annual exhibition showcases eight different artists and different mediums, such as - oil painting, water color, sculpture and print media. The unique aspect of this exhibit is its focus on the students. Each of the faculty members worked specifically in the领域s that they are teaching, therefore benefiting their students.

Professor Chris LaPorte commented on the importance of mastering the techniques of water color painting. "I introduced all students so that I could provide a truly nullified example for my students to follow."

LaPorte's work featured a series of watercolors based on childhood memories, which displayed vibrant colors and dramatic content. Professor Jean Scherer also stressed the importance of using art as a tool for teaching students. The drawing techniques she used mirrors what he seems to be like his student's work.

"The most important concepts that we want to instill in our work are exploration of materials and working in a series," said Scherer.

New interpretations can also be seen in an array of different mediums. The sculptures are accompanied by poems written by the faculty. "The way we work is so that when our students come, they will have a sense of what we want our art work to be like later on in their careers." Scherer said. The faculty spent a lot of time putting together just the pieces of art to showcase for their subjects. Students can see what they will experience throughout four years of study at Aquinas College. The exhibit runs through October 1. There will be a homecoming reception Saturday, September 30, from 2-4 p.m. at the AMC across from the Loudermilk Center. The exhibit will also be on Saturday nights while the AMC is open. The exhibit will also be on Saturday nights while the AMC is open.
Pettys Highway Companion is perfect for on the road

By Alan Tread

For one who once went down swinging (the Bell, the Thin Pettys new album, Highway Companion, delivers like a well-honed knife. Follow up to the poetic sentiment of a man who he knows he was "wrong" but who really isn't now." Pettys music both gets back his personal connection to country and a functional and familiar way to travel. Its a return to another masterwork.

With a vibe lying somewhere between the deft studio craft of "Black Friday" and the rawness of "Down South," the Petty on this album is strong and Earthy. Pettys stand out as the band work through the repeats on the lyric "The Pita." Such a move may "assertive prayer and a triumphant return to life." Its perfect for on the road and remains "confident but humble." Petty is going back to "swingin' like Billy the Kid, Tom Petty's masterpiece."

"The Saint" is perfect for students or more casual fans. The two albums are distinctly different. The Saint is the title of the brand new Petty album. The new album, Petty's next release, is his "most raw and intimate album yet." Pettys best lyric writing has all the wisdom of a man who, having won, yet remains "confident but humble." Pettys style is the title of the brand new Petty album. The new album, Petty's next release, is his "most raw and intimate album yet."

CROSS COUNTRY

Summer is usually the time to take a well-earned break and enjoy one-off. Well, even though the Women's cross country team probably accomplishes the latter, they do not spend the semester taking time off. Preparing for more than 15,000 miles, the Lady Saints have committed themselves to the greatest college marching bands time of the year.

Cross Country looks to repeat WHAC Championship, finishes second on Friday

As many of you know, I bleed Michigan State green and white through and through. Being a Michigan native, I grew up cheering for the team that I hated with a passion. The tradition, the fight song, and the experience in itself - to watch one of the greatest college marching bands time they've ever had - is something that, and it's continually known as one of the trickiest things to do. But the Spartans do it without flaw every time. And those two waves crashed into one another, and it's really close this year, said Lisa Wojciakowski.

Lianne Griffie came in at 19:52, while Amanda Borces earned a time of 19:33. The Lady Saints have scored 21 goals, including defender Leslie Needier, who is already in excellent nation-wide standings. In their seven games this season, the Lady Saints have scored 21 goals, including defender Leslie Needier, who has been starting for senior right-back Kaitlyn Meernik.

Another point for the Wolverines.

Drop-up: Brian Hofmann forward for Seneca Buffalo is tripped up by a Saint defender as he enters the box during a game last season. Hofmann has been in good goal since starting 12 games last season. A new slew of freshmen have been debt to keeping team on the map. "It is an enormous boost to our weight loss, and determination," said Matt Whitaker. Men's soccer starts with 4-record

By Bryan Esler

The men's soccer team would like to forget the last few seasons but knows it must start anew.

The Saints are hoping to put the past behind them and finish strong this season. With 14 starters returning, Coach Busch plans for a big season.

"I want to see them learn how to perform," said Veal. "I focus on making those guys play as a team as much as possible.

Veal coached the 1996 men's team, which won the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and advanced to the NCAA tournament. The current team is coached by Busch, who was an assistant coach under Veal during that season.

Veal said that he is excited about the upcoming season and believes the team has the potential to be successful.

The men's soccer team would like to improve on their 3-9-3 record from last season and make a run in the conference. Veal said that he is confident in his team's abilities and is looking forward to the season.

"The team is motivated and ready to go," Veal said. "I think we have a good balance of experience and youth.

Veal is a former player at Rockford High School and has coached at the high school and college level.

"We have some great players who we'll be relying on," Veal said. "I think the team is ready to take on these challenges."}

High hopes for Irish, Wolverines

By Bryan Esler

The Michigan Wolverines wrapped up their spring season last week. With their 8-3 record, they finished second in the BIG-10.

This year could be a turning point for the Big Ten football. After years of mediocrity, the conference is finally getting its act together. Coach Veal, the Wolverines' head coach, is optimistic about the team's chances.

"I think we have a lot of potential," Veal said. "I believe we can compete with the best in the conference and beyond.

The Wolverines have a solid defense and a strong offensive line. With big-wrecks like Vandervest and Casteel returning, the team is poised for success.

While the defense is strong, the offense will need to improve. Last year, the team struggled to put points on the board. However, with the addition of Smith and Johnson, Veal is confident in his team's ability to score.

"I think we have a good mixture of talent on offense," Veal said. "I believe we can be competitive with any team in the conference.

The team will face a tough schedule this year, with games against Ohio State, Michigan State, and Purdue. However, Veal is confident that his team can handle the challenge.

"I think we have a lot of experience," Veal said. "I believe we can handle the pressures of the big games.

The team is looking forward to the upcoming season and is ready to prove themselves on the field.

"I think we have a lot of potential," Veal said. "I believe we can compete with the best in the conference and beyond."

An explanation of the Moose's "Cash Only" Items

Dear Editor,

The Moose Cafe has been walking a fine line between being a rickety haven for the college community and a burden to our financial entity. Our financial situation has deteriorated over the years, which is a most troubling and record-breaking trend, and over a decade now, we are finding ourselves unable to charge our customers prices that are high enough to cover our expenses. Although these are a number of factors that contribute to the decline, one stands out above all the rest. The "moochers in the crowd" have created a problem that is affecting our business. However, we still show little sign of being exercised or notified. I ask for your patience and, if possible, your sympathy. I do express why despite prices skyrocketing elsewhere, a number of us, especially the students, are quite financially, we are not yet to paint a drastically different picture. Not that the Moose is immune to the problems that beset all small businesses, we are unable to work on its own. We are, however, with the help of the college, are able to cope with our financial issues. The Moose Cafe is in the process of a major renovation, and we are working with the college to make it more accommodating to our customers. The Devil Wears Prada Soundtrack is a sinful pleasure

With a cast including Meryl Streep, Anne Hathaway and Stanley Tucci, the expectations for the soundtrack were monumental. However, the soundtrack does not disappoint. It is a perfect blend of contemporary and classic music that enhances the visual experience of the film.

The Aquinas Art Department Faculty Exhibit returns this September to showcase faculty work

By Ellen Dassow and Katie Carty

The Devil Wears Prada Soundtrack is a must-have for your collection. Included in the soundtrack are songs that perfectly fit the characters and the overall theme of the film. The songs range from pop to rock, providing a diverse musical experience.

The faculty spent a lot of time putting together just the pieces of art to showcase for the students. Each of the faculty members worked with a different approach. Some faculty members express their passion and provide models that students can use for their own work. The exhibit is a testament to the creativity and talent of Aquinas faculty.

The end of an era had come. In an attempt to remedy the situation, the students of Aquinas had sent a request to the president to keep the table. The request was presented to the president, but it was denied due to the university’s policies on the use of the table. The students were disappointed, but they remained optimistic that the university would change its policies in the future.

Finally, midnight hit. It was time to hit the road. As students walked through the exhibit, they would see a wide range of art — from traditional to contemporary. The exhibit is a celebration of the diversity of faculty art and a reflection of the university’s commitment to the arts.

The Devil Wears Prada Soundtrack is a testament to the power of music to enhance the visual experience of a film. Whether you are a fan of the movie or not, the soundtrack is sure to provide a truly skilled example for my students to follow.

in the nation — right up there with Notre Dame! I was there with my friend to see it? We were watching a different game, and getting quite a bit of grief from the student section getting completely drunk before the game even begins. But on the first weekend of the season, I knew I was in for quite an experience in itself — to watch one of these stadiums certainly does so.
