Residency changes for 2010-2011

By Ben Stoltman

A letter was released on November 3, 2009, stating that the housing process will be changed for the 2010-2011 school year “to better meet the needs of students,” according to an October 19 meeting of the Student Senate. In the 2010-2011 school year, Regina Hall and the majority of St. Joseph Hall will be reserved for the incoming students.

“I know that the initial shock of change always brings with it some hard feelings, but I really think that once people get over the fact that it is something they’re not used to and think about it rationally, the changes will be received positively,” said Katbath.

According to the student senate resolution, those who began in 2007 or 2006 will have their assignments in the older student housing. Those who began in 2008 will be assigned to the dorms that they’re assigned to this fall. Those who began in 2009 will be assigned a room at the Gateshouse, or any remaining space on campus.

“The overall culture and conduct of Aquina students [will] change from what has been seen in the past. Instead of housing based on credits, a student’s residency options are based upon their entrance year at Aquinas College,” said Katbath.

“Aquinas College: Campus living gets a makeover

Reid Milhous talks to senior resident assistants junior Leah Kicinski and senior Katie Brandt about how things have changed in Regina Hall.

“I can’t picture it being even associated with Aquinata in order to accommodate other days. Most important to me is staying connected to Aquinas,” said Sattelburg.

“[Judicial Issues] will be continuing the commuter club. If we need to house students on campus, the club will be invited to certain events on campus as they’re staying connected to Aquinas,” said Sarfberg.

“[We] have an open door policy. Come to one of the informative sessions to learn what it means to be a Saint,” said Libracki.

“The overall culture and conduct of Aquina students [will] change from what has been seen in the past. Instead of housing based on credits, a student’s residency options are based upon their entrance year at Aquinas College.”

According to the plans and the numbers, Aquinata has space in its current space. It has the potential to be a two year facility for us anyway,” said Sattelburg.

“They’re going to understand,” said Libracki. “Half of students we’ve had for the last three years as an off campus housing fair will be held on March 20, 2010. In addition to searching for off campus housing, Residence Life will be adding new residential assignments for upperclassman, Residence Life has worked to find direction on campus housing options.

“The furniture from Aquinata is refurnished and some of the rooms there are planned to be moved into Hruby to accommodate and promote the Dominican Sisters’ charisms.”

In the Residence Life Department is a commitment to Aquinas’ identity, tradition, and mission. Thanks to the Dominican Sisters, a new living environment will be introduced and promoted to the current Aquinata residents.

“Well we know there would be a decline, that is what Aquinata was for,” said Libracki. “We have an open door policy. Come to one of the informative sessions or email us. We’re trying to be as transparent as possible,” said Sarfberg.

“We have not renewed it. There are probably 300,000 people who love Aquinata, but it was only meant to be a two year facility for us anyway,” said Sattelburg.

“The future three years as an off campus housing assignment for Aquinata residents, Aquinata in the Residence Life Department is coming to an end. Located a mile from Wag, the Aquinata room space in its plan for 30 to 50 more students, but it was never meant to be a permanent space in the future”

According to Ana Coordinator Alex Lentz, Aquinata has space in its current space. "It is often not known for half of the people who are in Aquinata in order to accommodate other days. Most important to me is staying connected to Aquinas," said Sattelburg.

Red Wings, Griffiths heading in opposite directions

By Doug Bates

Injuries and inexperience have been the Detroit Red Wings in recent times. For the young team, they are learning and growing. The Wings have had a tough season so far, but they haven’t given up hope. Griffiths, on the other hand, is rising to the occasion. His performance has been impressive, and he is proving to be a valuable asset to the team. Griffiths has scored three goals and added five assists in 11 games this season, and he is expected to continue his strong play for the remainder of the season. With the Wings struggling, Griffiths is stepping up and proving that he can be a key player for the team.

The Saint’s women’s basketball team has started the season off on a high note. The team has won their first four games, including a victory over Michigan State last week. The team has been led by senior guard Megan Miller, who has averaged 17.5 points per game. The team has also received solid contributions from sophomore forward Joslyn Narber and junior center April Feldpausch, who have been key contributors in the team’s early success.

BigTen takes down ACC in conference opener

By Dan Melby

The Big Ten defeated the ACC in the ACC Challenge, a series of 11 games played between the two conferences. The Big Ten won five of the 11 games, including a 70-59 victory over Duke in the season opener. The Big Ten’s victory was a testament to the conference’s depth and talent, as well as its defensive prowess. The ACC, on the other hand, struggled in the series, winning only six games. The Big Ten’s victory was a significant accomplishment for the conference, and it set the stage for a competitive season.

Let me predict the rest of this plan by saying that this is gratifying this year and more of this personally affects me in any way, I will not be spending. Aquinas College and therefore the new policy discussed here has nothing to do with where I will live. Residence Life recently changed the on-campus housing process. First-year and sophomore students will be given priority for housing in Apartments A-C and Meijer, Woodcock, Knape and Dominicans Halls. Juniors will be given priority for housing in Apartments D and the Gatehouse. Second-year students will have to apply in the "housing office in the basement of the Gatehouse". Third-year and senior students will be given priority for housing in on-campus housing and their housing office in the basement of the Gatehouse. Fourth-year and senior students will be given priority for housing in on-campus housing and the office in the basement of the Gatehouse, and they will have the most housing. If I go to a university where I have to apply, I will not have the housing options that I have at Aquinas."

Tueday, December 9th, 8:00PM, the AQ Jazz Band will hold their annual jazz lounge in the Moose Cafe. This has been one of the most anticipated events all year, due to the tapping of musical energy, and the establishment of the “jazz lounge”. The band, under the direction of Dr. Brewer, has a high reputation for their energy and unique instrument line-up. Running from light woodwinds to heavy electric guitar, the band brings a diverse musical group into the mix. Student Justin Dore, the band’s guitarist, is proud of the Jazz Band because “it's the only place where I can enjoy playing jazz and just plain fun.”

Ten years ago, two students got to talking about Starting a performance group that would feature the vocal and instrumental skills of Dr. Brewer. Since then, the group has been one of the most popular events in the area, regularly drawing a crowd of hundreds of people.

Dr. Brewer has been involved with the group's success, as well as the success of the Aquinas Jazz Band. He has helped push the group forward, and was instrumental in getting the group to where it is today.

Students often flock to the Moose Cafe to catch the group's performances, and have enjoyed the success of the Aquinas Jazz Band. The group has performed at several events, and has been well-received by audiences.

It is not until Miss Honeychurch meets Mr. Emerson and his wife in the woods that she begins to realize that there is more to life than just her social status and what is expected of her.

The new system still gives priority depending on class level and does not allow for a student to sign up for a class without having the correct prerequisites. "Establishing students and advisors to prerequisites, which people may see as a downfall, but I see as cleaning things up," said Lodewyk. Mesler partially attributes the low numbers in the fall to the fact that many seniors applied which could not be resolved, so they had to go to Registrar to work it out," said Lodewyk. Mesler said that students are also able to "get a quicker answer" when signing up for classes. If the student is not able to sign up for a certain class, but is notified right away and is able to make a decision to sign up for another class at that time.

The duo strikes again
T he Collageum 39, Peter's Basilica, the Tiber Fountain, Aquinas students...Rome: The city of culture, romance, food, and the pope awaits you.

In 2007, Dr. John Pinheiro, Director of Catholic Studies program, the focus narrowed to establishing a program in Rome that would be beneficial to Catholic Studies minors as well as the general Aquinas student population. "International Studies Director Joelle Baldwin...Although traveling in Rome, students will have opportunities to earn credit in these amongst others:

• Theology-a journey will be taken into the computer it will let you know if you have met the requirements for such classes will not be posted. I actually had to go to Registrar to work it out," said Lodewyk. Mesler, seniors, juniors, and the senior class. The advisees of six faculty members, including Kristal Hens-Curto, Jeff McKeeley, Deb Spring, Rose Solin, Betty Smith Banks and Joelle Gunnoe, randomly chosen to try out the new program. However, those who have tried the program "had a lot of fun," said Mesler. However, according to Lodewyk, those who already have their undergraduate schedule planned out will benefit most from the program. "I said that upper-classmen will benefit more from this process because they should already have their classes somewhat planned out and therefore apply for their classes quickly and not have to walk all over campus. I told that underclassmen should definitely still meet with advisors before going about picking classes because I feel one-on-one guidance with an advisor is very beneficial and an important aspect of Aquinas College which should not be solely send Catholic Studies students to Rome, they all agreed that a program should be open to everyone.

Pinheiro foresees the Rome program occurring straight through the Aquinas international program. Until then, the advisors will be able to help through the St. Thomas More Life and Culture.

In fall 2010, there will be something new to see in Italy with 10 of Aquinas' newest exhibit. Ron and Miriam Peterson explain their understanding of the Europe which included Rome. During this trip, Pinheiro had an epiphany.

"I thought," said Pinheiro, "I can't believe we don't have a Rome program. I'm going to go home and make that program."

And he did. Pinheiro had contacts through the St. Thomas More College of Liberal Arts that hosted students from various Catholic schools throughout Europe if having Aquinas students would be possible, and it was. That last year, he talked with Provost Chad Gannon and Joelle Baldwin. Director of International Programs, about sending students to Rome through the St. Thomas More program. Though the original intent was...
