Aquinas switches beverage contract, up for People program to continue under different name

By Brian Krsnik
The Saint Reporter

For a few months of spirited debate, Aquinas’ beverage contract has now been annulled. Coke will now be the main beverage vendor at Aquinas College. According to Health and Wellness Director Vincenta Beirne, “This isn’t the first time we’ve had Coke on campus. Coke was here when I was a student, so it’s not a first-time thing.” The central last time Coke was on campus was from 2003 to 2008, and the decision was made to switch back due to the cost of Pepsi products associated with Coke.

Expanding faith

Campus Ministry brings weekly series on Catholicism to campus.

"I believe wholeheartedly in being a Catholic," said Senior Jackie Reedy.

The ten-part series, "Broadening Horizons," is a Catholic lunchtime series featuring Rev. Barron's video, "The Catholicism of today: For the young and old," and will be broadcast Thursday through Friday at 12:15-1:15. The series is "an excellent effort to bring faith closer to all," said Reedy.

"It's not enough to just keep up with the politicians' lies for lying in this game, I had more personal issues going on," said one junior.

"I think that watching the series, it is a way to share my life story," said another junior.

The series was created by Catholic World TV as a way to strengthen the faith of young adults.

"This is a good way to allow the students to see aspects of Catholicism, and also to show them the beauty of the Catholic faith," said Senior Marshall.

The series is "an excellent effort to bring faith closer to all," said Reedy.

Student Senate looking to start more projects

Newly structured Student Senate is in full swing as the first semester hits the halfway mark.

By Brian Kalchik
The Saint Reporter

There are several things going on in Student Senate. In the past few weeks, “The traffic lights were fixed, and we are excited to see them back in service,” said chairwoman Laura Farrell. The committee is working to address and prioritize issues that arise on campus.

Eligible candidates for Student Senate have been announced. The election process will run from October 15 to 19. Student Senate members are up for election.

If Dillon wins, this will be his third term as president. He aims to continue working on friendly relations with Aquinas, Calvin, Cornerstone and Directorate. The schools listed were taken into consideration by the Student Senate, who conducted an in-depth research and data-driven project that involves all four schools. The goal is to establish a framework for these colleges to share ideas and to work together.

A quinas ranked higher than the other schools and was mentioned as a breath of fresh air. In many ways, the SHL would allow open and respectful dialogue. The group distinguished by vigorous opposition to religious ideas is the Secular Humanists. However, the idea came from a couple of faculty members, and the group was started by moderator Jim Lehrer, host of NewsWeek.

As the debate heated up, the topic of the death penalty was discussed. A proposal to legalise the death penalty was also taken into consideration.

from our view

At Aquinas, the charter of “Service” is one of the core tenets of our college culture. Moreover, serving others is just something that students should do, regardless of connection to the college.

The Saint comments those students who are participating in service learning trips over Fall Break. For many of us who are not traveling next week, it is hard to imagine giving up so much time to a single cause. As students, we know what it is like to keep juggling papers, presentations, and all sorts of other projects in our college careers. Giving up time specifically to help those in need often seems impossible with the burden of other personal obligations we take on. These trips are well known throughout Aquinas as an amazing opportunity for service, and are often remembered by students as fantastic experiences where they learn more about themselves, their friends, and the global community.

Even if students are not participating in service learning trips, they should consider making time to volunteer and get involved in the Grand Rapids community. Currently services in need just a graduation requirement, or a punishment. As adults, students should try to volunteer as much as they can. There are many Grand Rapids citizens that rely on people’s help to stay running. The efforts of our friends and neighbors can be felt in many different organizations, from the Eastern Community Association and Habitat for Humanity, and more personal efforts, like after-school mentoring programs, local blood drives, and pet food pantries. Grand Rapids would simply not be the same without their volunteers. Some of us have probably personally benefited from volunteer-driven programs—there are numerous ones to go back to.

As fall breaks start up, reflect on us who are heading off to do service in the world. Whatever you do, try to grow back to your community. Make service a part of your life.

Many people think that abortion is a complex issue—too complex to have a definitive or in any way obvious solution. This article is not for those people. Instead, this article is for the people who believe that abortion is a determined issue—meaning that the risk is simply too great.

To those people, for whatever reason, the moral issue of abortion is settled fact, the knowledge of which would make the undecided decide. And, the apostate miserable. I think that this is what Robert C. Re and I—our career is said a “load of stuff.” And here, I’ll try to give some reasons why.

“Wrong,” you might say with a hint of incredulity, “you’re going to address the abortion issue, which you just said was very complex, in a space of a few hundred words?” To which I’d say, “But wait,” you might say, with a hint of incredulity, “you’re going to address the abortion issue, which you just said was very complex, in a space of a few hundred words?”

“Stop asking so many questions,” New York Times columnist Bari Weiss told the Times. “We’re not going to have to get into the nitty-gritty, the moral concerns of the people. Balancing the ethical status of abortion is a settled fact; one with a straightforward solution. Why’s that? The Bible/Pope/theology/philosophical mud and give people a hint of incredulity, “you’re going to address the abortion issue, which you just said was very complex, in a space of a few hundred words?”

Muse has laid down the law

By Tyler Hauser

The Saint Reporter

Muse is back, and true to Muse form, they are doing things their way. Muse’s sixth studio album, The 2nd Law, transitions well from their 2008 album, The Resistance. This time around, the listener is taken on a journey through the influences of Led Zeppelin, The Beatles, and U2. The album opens with an adrenaline-fueled intro, “Survival,” which is basically Muse’s darkest shade to date, the “new” Foo Fighters, and the band’s first single, “Survival.”

The unique tracks of the al­bum include, “Younger and Younger,” “Unbelievable!” and “The 2nd Law,” which showcase an incredible range of styles. The second of which would seems more news to a Muse fan, and the third, an orchestral movement. In both songs, the lyrics and the music are speaking to the listener, the listener tricking themselves into trying to come in less to light. Trillium Haven is organic, local and delicious

By Lasse Cremers The Saint Reporter

East Grand Rapids is a vibrant, diverse area of our city, full of urban attractions. But when I walked off, nature on my right, Lake Drive into Trillium Haven restaurant for lunch, I was quickly overtaken with the atmosphere. After being seated at the front entrance, I noticed a menu that stared up through the dining room into the restaurant. You can see the skyline, bedroom clean kitchen areas to the cozy woodsy hanging lamps with the violin music that set the scene for the meal. Little details such as woodsy hanging succulent plants, are what contribute to the tawny bustle.

But when I walked off busy, entirely different. When walking through it, there is always a long line for the monster haunted house, which has freaky animals inside. The “Buried Alive” is for the strong-willed. If you are not a fan of being “Buried Alive,” “Brainfield” is for you. The haunted house has been a monster hit for many years, and every year it gets better and scarier. There is always a long line for the haunted house portion, every group has to contain about seven people, so most of the line usually goes quickly because walking through it, you will see the monster.” The Haunt is a good option, but for people who wait in line for too long, Nights of Fear is a good option. The Haunt is not only an exciting place to visit, but it is also an opportunity to support local haunted forests, and big haunted houses.

But when I walked off busy, entirely different. When walking through it, there is always a long line for the monster haunted house, which has freaky animals inside. The “Buried Alive” is for the strong-willed. If you are not a fan of being “Buried Alive,” “Brainfield” is for you. The haunted house has been a monster hit for many years, and every year it gets better and scarier. There is always a long line for the haunted house portion, every group has to contain about seven people, so most of the line usually goes quickly because walking through it, you will see the monster.” The Haunt is a good option, but for people who wait in line for too long, Nights of Fear is a good option. The Haunt is not only an exciting place to visit, but it is also an opportunity to support local haunted forests, and big haunted houses.

M.J. McCabe showcases the human form in her new exhibit

Trillium Haven is organic, local and delicious

By Lasse Cremers The Saint Reporter

East Grand Rapids is a vibrant, diverse area of our city, full of urban attractions. But when I walked off, nature on my right, Lake Drive into Trillium Haven restaurant for lunch, I was quickly overtaken with the atmosphere. After being seated at the front entrance, I noticed a menu that stared up through the dining room into the restaurant. You can see the skyline, bedroom clean kitchen areas to the cozy woodsy hanging lamps with the violin music that set the scene for the meal. Little details such as woodsy hanging succulent plants, are what contribute to the tawny bustle.

As the chilly weather returns and the leaves start to fall, the volleyball team is busy getting ready to do what it does best. As a whole, the team has been practicing and perfecting their skills in preparation for the upcoming season. This year, the team hopes to make it to the state tournament and bring home a championship.

The team has been practicing every day, working on their serves, spikes, and blocks to prepare for the upcoming season. They have been working on their defense, trying to improve their passing and setting. The team has been working on their court awareness, trying to anticipate where the ball will go and be in the right position to receive it.

The team has been competing in several tournaments, including the regional tournament and the state tournament. They have been playing against some of the best teams in the state, pushing themselves to improve and become better players.

The team has a strong bond, both on and off the court. They support each other, encouraging and motivating each other to work hard and give their best in every match. The team has a positive attitude, always looking for ways to improve and achieve their goals.

The team has a strong leader in their head coach, who has been coaching the team for several years. Under their guidance, the team has grown and developed into a strong, competitive team.

The Aquinas volleyball team is ready to face any challenge this season. They have worked hard, prepared well, and are ready to take on the competition. With a positive attitude and a strong will, the team is confident that they can achieve their goals and bring home a championship.

Detroit Lions end slump

By Becky Stock
Sports Writer

The Detroit Lions have finally put their losing streak behind them with a 25-23 win over the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday. After a 3-8 start last week, the Lions needed a win to get back on track. With the win, they move to 4-8 on the season.

The Lions defense was key in the win, holding the Eagles to just 23 points. The offense also contributed, with the Lions scoring 25 points of their own. The win was a welcome relief for fans of the struggling team.

The Lions headed into the game with a lot to prove. They were coming off a tough loss to the New England Patriots in their previous game. The Lions needed to show that they could bounce back and give their fans something to cheer about.

The win was a huge boost for the team and their fans. It proved that the Lions are capable of winning games and that they can compete with some of the best teams in the league.

The Lions have a tough schedule ahead, with games against the Baltimore Ravens and the Green Bay Packers on the horizon. But with this win, they can build on their momentum and keep fighting for a playoff spot.
