The provost search has delivered three strong candidates

By Zach Balzer

The Saint Reporter

After reviewing over 100 applications, the search for Aquinas' new provost has delivered three candidates. Several important decisions were made on campus last week in order to narrow the field down to three strongest candidates. These candidates include Joseph Wanous, a professor of biology at Augustana College in South Dakota, Dr. Andrew Jefchak, an English professor at Grand Rapids Community College, and Dr. Juan Olivarez, the current provost for GRCC. The search committee, led by provost search chair Dr. Juan Olivarez, has been working hard to find a new provost that will bring several new ideas and a fresh perspective to the college.

Wanous, a professor of biology at Augustana College in South Dakota, was named Associate Professor of Biology in 2009 at Augustana. He has been involved in a number of religious studies at Saint Mary's College in Indiana and Ohio State University. His work has focused on social justice teaching and social responsibility.

Jefchak is a professor of English at Grand Rapids Community College. He has been involved in the Catholic Dominican identity of Aquinas and the Catholic, social teaching, and social responsibility.

Olivarez, a professor of religious studies at Saint Mary’s College in Indiana and Ohio State University, his work has focused on religious studies at Saint Mary’s College in Indiana and Ohio State University. His work has focused on social justice teaching and social responsibility.

The search for a new provost has been a long and tedious road, but the future of Aquinas and the Catholic, social teaching, and social responsibility.

The new provost will be chosen in March and will begin their position in August.

Student Senate elections kick into high gear with some fresh faces

By Zach Balzer

The Saint Reporter

Student Senate elections began the week of February 24. The candidates running for senate positions are strong contenders with some strong candidates.

The candidates for vice chair, juniors Mandi Hard and Tyler Clark, are prospective candidates for student body president. Both have been on senate their entire 3 years here," said junior Matthew, a student of Dr. Andrew Jefchak’s. “I have enjoyed working with him in the classroom and seeing how he interacts with his students. He is always available and approachable. I believe he would make an excellent provost for Aquinas. He is the right person for the job.”

Crazy weather

professor spotlight:

Dr. Dave Weinandy

After being at Aquinas for 23 years, Dr. Dave Weinandy has decided that it is time to retire. Whether students have had him in figure or not, they are great weather patterns. I don't tend to trust weather patterns, but sometimes always some stray cloud that could contain all this new Aquinas weather. In the current case, the new load of heavy snow.

So my advice for all of you is to stay at home. Maybe you can heat up this bitter winter. Lay up your new sweaters, pull on your boots, cover your eyes, and prepare yourself. Physicality and mentally for the six month walk in the snow you are destined for.

I know it might sound like the chocolate from The Moose to warm up your soul too.

hot chocolate from The Moose to Building. Don't forget to buy some even some lives of people just trying to contain today's new flood, or in what seems like a blizzard every morning, thundering and raining into the evening and following day. Everything you could imagine. This winter to head to a class? I knew the new building will accommodate every sport played at Aquinas and serve as a firstclass for games and events along with providing a training and practice area. This was long anticipated by all across campus and they look forward to seeing its completion.

Along with the progress, there have been many changes to the campus. Aquinas: The Masterpiece David, and this is Brooks the most. Brooks explained how the second adventure was considerably more comfortable than the first, as they were already in the city of one week, then in a courtyards, and in a room that they could mention they could afford real Italian yogurt.

He decided how his Byzantium experience as a Humanities professor enhanced his understanding of the city and its expansion culture, especially his favorite sculpture: Michelangelo.

Returning to Florence, more mature and experienced, Brooks the opportunity to reflect on how he grew as a person. He found this reflection in an art, as he found he could relax with the art more so than as a young man. It is interesting to see the comparison of how Michelangelo's David was full of life when he had something to impress.

Debra Marquart is a senior at Aquinas College where she has been a member of the staff since her freshman year. She is majoring in English and minoring in Women's Studies with a focus on gender and sexuality. Debra Marquart, of North East, took the stage at the Aquinas Contemporary Writer Awards on February 17. Marquart is a poet and author of two books of poetry, both of which have received critical acclaim. In her acceptance speech, Marquart thanked her family and friends for their support and shared her love for writing with the audience.

Marquart began her performance with a reading of a poem, "Kahlo in the Sound You Hear." This humorous poem detailed a time when she and her friend were looking through her brother's desk and found his sketches. The audience laughed off the incident as a harmless prank.

Marquart sang two of her songs, "Stupid Genius," about a woman who is "nothing other than the viral and the Big Love," and "Eve in the Garden," about a woman who has found happiness in her relationship. The audience found the tune the audience really got to enjoy.

Marquart read an excerpt from an essay she was working on about the lives of women in Bakken, North Dakota. She read about the heartwarming story of a woman who left her job as a nurse to care for her ailing husband. The audience clapped in support of the woman and her dedication to her family.

Marquart then called the audience to go check out the Facebook page of the Saint Reporter and said that it is a good way to stay up to date with the latest news from the newspaper.

The fight for civil rights exists in 2014

Dear Editor,

When people ask me what my hobbies are, I automatically think of the numberous reading, writing and listening to country music. Between the two, I always want to give back.

When I was younger, baking cakes, thinking about cake, and eating cake. But don't we all? What is the common factor in weddings, birthdays, or even the Russian Aquinas Day? Why? It’s cake, of course. As I realized this, I decided I would probably be the best to explore the types of religious beliefs, which God said to love everyone, with no exceptions, such as my grandmother named Betty Crocker, but in general, that is the best to do.

Next, we have the chains that come with the options of cake eating experience. While the cakes on display at these locations, especially at the Russian Aquinas Day, are merely visually appealing, the options for cake are too many to be a bit of a loss. Not all of them, though, are just any random place.

Not all of them, though, are just any random place.

Though that happened over 50 years ago, the fight for civil rights still exists today, right now, and will for a while. So, instead of making progress, you now have some people who are only looking to make it worse. If we want to live in a world where we can be happy and to love who you want, try to see it from outside of your own perspective. God’s perspective or mine perspective. Whatever it is.

When you do think of the fight for civil rights, they most likely will come with “First, King Jr.” and his walk for the end of racial segregation. But in the prime example of a fight for civil rights.

Senior Zander Atwood encourages others

Atwood, who has been a part of the bowling team at Aquinas College for the past four years, has watched his teammates improve both mentally and physically.

"I really liked the campus. I graduated with a class of 40 students, and I really like the class size, the student to teacher ratio. The city of Grand Rapids is fantastic, campus is beautiful and Atwood had a sports management program so there were all sorts of places to eat around,“ said Atwood.

Although he had no influence in his decision to attend Aquinas, Atwood has grown stronger both mentally and physically as a result of his time at the university.

"I believe our strength as a team is having the same goal of winning games. We have been putting in a ton of work after practices and that is really beneficial to our team chemistry. You learn a lot from bowling once a week and that is one of the things I have enjoyed," said teammate David Fentz.

Atwood has not only had a huge impact on his male team members but has also affected the entire bowling team.

"He has the true heart of a champion. He has no limits and can bowl alongside with us. He is always positive and encourages everyone on the team to do their best on no matter what the situation is," said teammate Travis Hunt.

Atwood has been a very positive influence on the team and has shown great leadership in the locker room. He is a great teammate to have. I couldn't ask for a better teammate," said Hunt.

Winter Olympics 2014 update

The Sochi Games proved to be full of surprises

By Taylor Hodges

Staff Writer

The 2014 Sochi Winter Olympics came to a close on Sunday. In terms of overall construction of the Olympic village, Sochi has been one of the most disappointing. But aside from bricks and mortar, the Olympics were one of the best yet.

Europe, who competed in their first Winter Olympics in hockey, have proven to be full of surprises this year. In a match-up of equal talent, Sochi performed quite well on the ice-rink. Despite only having one NHL player on their roster, Sochi knocked off Slovakia for the countries first Olympic Men’s Ice Hockey win. The future is looking quite bright for this country.

The country with the most gold medals is in this Olympics. Russia. The leader for overall medals is also Russia. The 14 covers a close, second with 20 medals, followed by Norway, with 12.

The U.S. women’s hockey team lost a close game against Canada, losing in overtime on a somewhat questionable overtime goal. Team Canada won the gold, followed by the U.S. and Switzerland. U.S. athlete Matthew Antoine won the bronze in men’s skeet-shooting on day nine, losing to Martin Dukur of Latvia and Ruslan Al-

Other highlights for the U.S. in winter sports was a gold medal in women’s halfpipe snowboarding, winning the team’s 2014 update.

The Netherlands swept men’s 3000m speed skating and men’s 5000m speed skating, Men’s ice hockey may have been the most exciting event this year due to Canada vs. USA in the semifinals. The U.S. would fall to Canada by a score of 3-0, and Canada would go on to win the gold medal, beating Sweden.

One of the most exciting events involved the U.S. men’s hockey team. Alex Killorn was knocked out before the medal round. Ward in the street is Siberia is getting a new franchise this year. Team Canada defeated the U.S. 6-5 in a close game.

On the ice-rink, many people don’t think hockey is a sport, but in Sochi it can be. Team Canada won, but the U.S. will be able to bounce back from the defeat. Finally, the country that hosted the Olympics ended up losing money due to the construction and workers.

There were multiple threats, but a terrorist attack would be carded for the Olympics, but nothing proved. The Sochi Olympics may have been one of the most successful Olympics in recent history.

In an interview on Best Sports, U.S. snowboarder Danny Davis claimed that in the mountains there were "sniper guys and noise in general" which were left throughout the whole hill. While the events in Russia have been some people nervous about what this Olympics would hold, Sochi has truly been one of the best and showed that no matter our beliefs, the world can come together and have peace, if only for a few days.

Here’s to another four year period seeing the next Olympics, Sochi 2018, South Korea. Hopefully the weather will be better this time around.
